

Ford Calls For Tax Alterations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that inflation can "destroy our country, our homes, our liberties," President Ford proposed Tuesday an anti-inflation campaign combining tax breaks for business expansion with hikes for corporations and many individuals.

In a nationally broadcast address to a joint session of Congress, Ford called also for special help for the unemployed and the beleaguered construction industry and new moves to conserve energy.

The President was interrupted by applause 25 times during the 44-minute speech, but most of it came from the Republican side of the aisle. And some congressional Democrats quickly modified general pledges of cooperation with criticism of his tax package.

The speech, Ford's second to a joint session in his young administration, provided few surprises, following a pattern that had emerged from the series of economic summit meetings in September and the President's public statements in recent weeks.

As was widely reported in advance, Ford asked

Congress to impose a temporary, one-year income tax surcharge of 5 per cent on corporations and individual taxpayers in the middle and upper-income range.

As explained by the White House, the surcharge would hit families with adjusted gross incomes of $15,000 or more and single persons with incomes of $7,500 or above. It would apply only to their income above these amounts.

The President also sought a liberalized, across-the-board investment tax credit of 10 per cent to encourage expansion of factories and business and to assist public utilities complaining of increased fuel and borrowing costs.

In an unusual departure from Capitol Hill etiquette for a presidential address to the assembled joint houses, Ford ended his speech with a direct appeal through the television cameras to the American consumer and taxpayer.

Ford asked the American public to drive less, heat less and waste less food scraps from the family dinner table.

The President also sported a red and white badge spelling in capital letters the single word: WIN. Inviting every American to wear one, Ford indicated he wants it to become a symbol for winning the war on inflation like World War II's "V" for victory.

To help the jobless as the economy continues to slump — and living costs rise — Ford proposed the creation of a new Community Improvement Corps to provide public service jobs when unemployment exceeds 6 per cent nationally. The current rate is 5.8 per cent and is expected to increase.

The President, in addition, recommended an extra 13 weeks of special unemployment insurance benefits for those who have used up their credits and 26 weeks of benefits for those not now covered by a regular unemployment insurance program. These would be financed from Treasury revenues and not from taxes on employers.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told newsmen the one-year surtax was expected to raise $4.7 billion — $2.6 billion from individuals and $2.1 billion from corporations.

Simon said the liberalized investment tax credit would bring corporations $2.7 billion a year in benefits so the impact of the surtax to them would be more than offset by what would amount to companion tax cuts.

The President produced no new plan to lower taxes for the poor but instead endorsed a tax revision bill now pending in the House Ways and Means Committee that he said would give the poor $1.6 billion of tax relief.

The proposal now before the committee would increase the maximum standard deduction from $2,000 to $2,500 and would boost the low-income deduction from $1,300 to $1,400 for single taxpayers and $1,500 for couples.

In the energy area, Ford fixed a goal of reducing imports of foreign oil by one million barrels a day by the end of 1975. This would be accomplished by increasing domestic energy production and by conserving oil.

To develop "a single national energy policy and program," Ford created a National Energy Board headed by Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton.

One section of the President's address dealt with the slumping housing industry. Urging Congress to make most home mortgages eligible for purchase by federal agencies, Ford said that if this is done, "I will make at least $3 billion immediately available for mortgage purchases, enough to finance about 100,000 homes."

He also advanced a recommendation that, while it would apply to all corporations, would in his words be especially helpful to energy-producing utilities that are hard-pressed to finance expansion needed to meet increasing power needs.

Ford asked Congress "to enact tax legislation to provide that all dividends on preferred stocks, issued for cash be fully deductible by the issuing company."

To help farmers produce more, and put downward pressure on food prices, Ford said he will allocate all the fuel farmers need to do their work. And he said he would ask Congress for power to allocate fertilizer.

Plan At A Glance

Washington (AP) — Here at a glance are President Ford's proposals to Congress for curbing inflation:

Energy

Reduce foreign oil imports by one million barrels per day by the end of 1975 through a variety of conservation measures and other steps, including deregulation of natural gas supplies and relaxation of some environmental laws. In addition the elimination, by 1980, of oil-fired plants from the nation's base-loaded electrical capacity.

Tax Surcharge

A one-year, 5% surcharge on corporate taxes and on a portion of taxes paid by families who earn more than $15,000 and by individuals earning more than $7,500 in 1975. This would raise an estimated $4.7 billion.

Other Taxes

Increase the investment tax credit from 7% to 10% and allow corporations to deduct the dividends paid on preferred stocks.

Employment

A two-step program to extend unemployment insurance benefits by 13 weeks and create additional public service jobs whenever unemployment exceeds 6% nationally.

Housing

Provide $3 billion for mortgage purchases to finance about 100,000 homes.

Food

Remove all remaining acreage limitations on rice, peanuts and cotton and allocation of all fertilizer supplies to enable farmers "to produce to full capacity."

Antitrust Laws

Vigorous enforcement of present laws with increased maximum penalties for antitrust violations from $50,000 to $1 million for corporations, and from $50,000 to $100,000 for individual violators.

In addition to his proposals to Congress, Ford appealed to every American to "grow more, waste less" and "drive less, heat less" to help increase food supplies, lower prices and save scarce fuel supplies.

FORD ... speaks of conserving energy.

Ford's Austerity Plan Nets Mixed Reaction

Nebraska's Republican Congressional delegation frowned on President Ford's proposed 5% surtax, but generally in favor of the overall message, hearing the President's speech to Congress Tuesday afternoon.

Nebraska's Democratic governor J. James Exon was more open to the proposal.

And three Lincoln residents interviewed downtown Tuesday afternoon said the surtax should not extend as low as the $15,000 per-family income suggested by the President.

Sen. Carl Curtis told The Star he's "pleased with the proposals as a total package. They chart the way to fight inflation."

Curtis said, he's especially pleased with Ford's stated goals of energy self-sufficiency, and fuel and fertilizer guarantees for the country's farmers.

Balanced Budget

He said he is "positively for a balanced budget" but he cannot support a one-year surtax until he is convinced money needed for Ford's economic plans cannot be supplied by budget cutbacks in federal departments.

Sen. Roman Hruska said: "Congress can provide the money for these higher priority programs by cutting expenditures. It's their (Congressmen's) choice, if they want to burden the American people with more taxes."

He said he agreed with Ford's emphasis on reduced federal spending.

'Gratifying'

"It was especially gratifying to see that the first subject he dealt with was agriculture," Hruska said. "His acknowledgment that farmers and ranchers, by their efficiency and productivity, have a major role to play in providing reasonably priced food, was most welcome."

Nebraska's First District Congressman, Charles Thone, said the added income from the surtax "would be too much of an invitation to more spending by the fiscally unsound majority in Congress."

He and Hruska said Ford's package had more good than bad, and each point will require much study.

Dyas Not Enthusiased

Democratic First District candidate for Congress Hess Dyas was less than enthused about Ford's line of approach. "His fight on inflation is at the expense of the wrong people."

He said "we are opening up more loopholes for the wealthy and the corporations and really socking it to the middle income people."

"What I feel we should be doing is tax reform" because "the poor are being hit hardest by inflation."

He also said he is "very concerned with what Ford is setting out to do with agriculture. Ford is talking about producing more food and removing acreage limits — a cheap food policy — but he is not clear on how the farmer will come through all this."

Exon said of Ford's desire for balanced governmental budgets: "We've been doing this in Nebraska and we'll continue to tighten the belt where we can."

Exon said he was disappointed that Ford's speech emphasized all-out food production "while he made only passing mention of the fact farmers should receive fair prices for their products."

He said he expected Ford to announce at least a temporary suspension of beef imports. He said it only makes sense to give farmers fuel priority after calling for full agricultural production.

Exon said he's inclined to go along with a 5% surtax but he wants to study Ford's claim that he needs the money before he definitely approves.

Situation 'Serious'

Wallace Peterson, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Economics Department, said the nation's economic situation is "as serious in its own way as the depression of the 1930s."

He said the tax surcharge is "not bad in itself, but it doesn't get to the root of the problem."

Price increases related to energy and food costs won't be affected by the surtax, Peterson said, although the new tax would curtail spending.

"The proposed tax deals more with political than economic realities," he said. He called for long-term, far-reaching reforms in the "excessive concentration of power lodged in giant corporations, giant financial institutions and giant labor organizations."

Craig MacPhee, also in the UNL Economics Department, said that most of President Ford's plan "deals with shifting the burden of inflation rather than stopping it." He said the burden is not necessarily shifted to those who can afford it most.

From the downtown interviews:

— Chuck Schafer of 877 N. 26th St., who is single and above the $7,500 income bracket, said he thinks a tax surcharge should not affect anyone who has an income of less than $25,000. He said he thinks those in upper income brackets and the large corporations should be hit.

— Jim Bishop of 929 N. 39th St., said he thinks the surcharge will help the economic situation, but that $18,000 would be a fairer income floor for the surcharge. Bishop, 25, is married with one child and is affected by the new tax. He believes that stricter regulations on higher incomes — those around $35,000 — are necessary.

Concerning President Ford's other proposals, Bishop said: "The public should adhere to some of these or we could have much stricter regulations."

— Mrs. Jo Little of 2301 Park St., said she is in a low-income bracket, but still doesn't feel that the middle income people should be penalized by the tax surcharge just because they're "better off" than she.

She said she cannot cut-back on food expenses: "We're eating strictly economy foods now and it's not even a healthy diet."

— Dan Ladely, director of the Sheldon Gallery film program, said he didn't hear the speech but understood that the President wants people to "eat less and go fewer places."

"I have been doing that for a long time," he said.

— Kelly Nash, another Sheldon employee who also said he heard the message second hand, said it reminded him of Marie Antoinette saying "if they don't have bread, let them eat cake."

School Board OKs New Transfer Policy

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Board of Education members divided sharply Tuesday night before finally approving a proposed change in the district's policy for student transfers to other schools in the city.

The hour-long debate on liberalizing the current policy centered around possible discrimination against students who transfer and seek eligibility to participate in varsity athletics.

The board first split 3-2-1 on the policy recommended by Supt. John Prasch and the Principals' Council, with President T. E. Dewey, John Lux and Marvin Stewart voting yes, and Lou Roper and Pearl Goldenstein voting no. Williamette Shafer abstained.

Roper led the fight against the policy change, saying students on transfer permits, under certain conditions, would be able to "participate in other activities but no athletics."

The new policy makes the Athletic Policies

Committee rule individually on eligibility.

Dewey objected to Roper's proposal that the Activities Policy Committee rule on eligibility for all transfer students who do not qualify, under the policy, to compete in any interscholastic competition. Dewey said a separate policy would be required for the committee to administer appeals.

Mrs. Shafer changed her abstention vote to yes, and the new policy was approved by the required margin, 4-2.

Supt. Prasch said although the policy is "significantly different, it is still based on the district's expectation that students should go to a school in the area where they live."

"The real danger" in loosening the transfer policy, Prasch said, is the risk of "emptying out some buildings if there's room in others." When one building starts to empty, he said a "mass psychology" follows that "something must be wrong."

Under the new policy, students who wish to attend a school outside the attendance boundaries of the locations of their homes must request a transfer permit by Jan. 15, and each permit must be renewed annually.

Decisions on permits will be made by Feb. 1 each year to allow time to plan building staff requirements. Permits will be allowed only to schools in which enrollment is below capacity on Jan. 15, and list of closed schools will be published.

Permits will be granted, in priority order, to continue attendance at a school where a student is already enrolled; where older brothers or sisters attend; where out-of-school care is closer to a certain elementary school; where specific programs are available in schools other than the one nearest a student's home; and finally, where room is available.

Secondary students may participate in varsity athletics or other interscholastic competition only if they qualify for transfer under the first, second or fourth priorities. Students transferred by the district are automatically eligible.

Senate OKs Campaign Spending Limits

Washington (UPI) — The Senate approved a compromise package of political reforms Tuesday which would give the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates $20 million each in taxpayer funds to wage their 1976 campaigns.

The landmark legislation — an aftermath of the Watergate scandals — is certain to produce radical changes in American political campaigns.

In addition to providing public financing for political campaigns, the measure would eliminate "fat cat" donors and, for the first time, set a limit on candidate spending.

The Senate acted swiftly in an effort to complete congressional action before the start of the pre-election recess Friday. The House is expected to approve the sweeping bill Thursday.

President Ford has not indicated whether he will sign or veto the bill, but congressional leaders said they felt it had a better chance of approval if it reached the White House before the November elections.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said a "glaring failure" of the bill was its lack of provision for public financing of congressional campaigns.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., a strong opponent of public financing for political campaigns, announced in advance that he would vote against the compromise.

Allen said the bill contains "much that is good, much that I support" but that he would vote against it because of the "iniquitous" taxpayer financing feature.

The measure would provide the major party candidates with $20 million each in the presidential elections plus $2 million each to stage their national conventions.

In addition, candidates in the presidential primaries could get up to $5 million each, with the government matching private contributions of $250 or less.

All the money would come from the $1 checkoff on individual income tax returns which is expected to produce more than $60 million by 1976.

Individual contributors would be limited to giving $25,000 in any year and no more than $1,000 to a candidate in the primaries and $1,000 in the general election. Organizations could give $5,000 to a candidate in the primary and $5,000 in the general election.

Presidential candidates could spend $20 million in the general elections and $10 million in the primaries. Ceilings are also set for Senate and House candidates.

Black Singer Cancels Concert At Boston Hall

Hollywood (UPI) — Lena Horne Tuesday canceled a three-day singing performance in Boston saying, "Stoning of black children and the beating of black citizens forces me to cancel my appearance."

Miss Horne, reacting to the violence of the school busing program in Boston, canceled her Boston Symphony Hall concert with singer Tony Bennett which was to have run Oct. 23-26.

Ford Wears 'WIN' Button

Washington (UPI) — President Ford wore a "WIN" button in his lapel in exhorting Congress and the people to join in his battle plan against inflation.

He was warmly received by his former congressional colleagues on arrival at the House chamber to address the joint session of Congress and a national television audience.

For most of the 50 minutes he spoke, Ford's tone ranged from somber to somewhat evangelical as he spelled out his formula for setting the nation's economy right again.

He got a standing ovation before he began and after he finished, and was interrupted by applause about two dozen times — although much of it appeared more polite than enthusiastic.

The sustained applause came when he ruled out new gasoline taxes, and when he flashed the "WIN" button with a plea for all Americans to join the fight against inflation "until we do win as a nation and as a people."

But the keystone of his economic package, a surcharge on the income taxes of those in middle and upper earning brackets, was received rather coolly.

Ford evoked laughter when he reached the section of his speech dealing with federal taxes and spending, saying "I am frank to say I have been earnestly advising to wait and talk about taxes" until after the Nov. 5 elections.

But he quickly changed pace and prompted applause when he said he "will not play politics with America's future" in making economic policy.

He also got some laughs when he noted that "by not almost everybody else has stated my position on federal gasoline taxes — this time I'll do it myself."

The reaction was warm to his proposals for "an inflation impact statement" on all major legislative proposals, additional government purchases of home mortgages, and reduced federal spending.

At other points the president paused, apparently expecting a show of support, then continued when none was forthcoming.

He did not appear nervous, although he muffed several lines.

Dear President Ford:

I enlist as an Inflation Fighter and Energy Saver for the duration. I will do the very best I can for America.

1978 Deadline Proposed For 40% Better Mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford proposed Tuesday a 1978 deadline for automakers to build a 40 per cent improvement of gasoline mileage into their new cars — either voluntarily or by legal requirement.

If achieved, such an improvement would mean that the average car, now getting around 13 miles per gallon, would have to deliver about 18 miles per gallon four years from now.

Ford did not say how this could be done, but the Federal Energy Administration began discussing the possibilities with the auto industry last summer.

Improvements in engine design might achieve part of the fuel-saving, while additional savings might come from increasing the proportion of small cars manufactured and sold.

Ford raised the appeal for more economical cars to a new level by pledging that he personally would meet with automakers "to assure — either by agreement or by law — a firm program aimed at achieving a 40 per cent increase in gasoline mileage within a four-year development deadline."

Ford also said he would ask Congress to require steam-electric power plants to run on coal or nuclear energy instead of oil or gas, with 1980 the deadline for conversion.

In his lengthy economic address to Congress, Ford officially announced the appointment of Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton as "the over-all boss of our national energy program" in place of Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, confirming an earlier report.

But Ford's energy proposals conspicuously omitted the most controversial measures considered by his administration in recent weeks.

Ford emphasized he was not seeking a new tax on gasoline, and he made no mention of a surtax on electricity and natural gas rates.

Such surtaxes or charges had been considered, and were favored by Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill, to stimulate deep cuts in U.S. energy consumption.

Sawhill figured world oil prices would come down if the United States reduced its oil consumption by 1.5 million barrels a day and other industrial countries matched that.

Ford said Morton's orders are "to reduce imports of foreign oil by one million barrels per day by the end of 1975, whether by savings here at home or by increasing our own sources."

But energy experts say domestic oil production cannot be increased substantially that fast.

And for immediate oil conservation, Ford fell back mainly on an appeal for voluntary cooperation by the public and by industry.

His toughest proposal was to require steam-electric power plants to abandon oil and natural gas as fuels by 1980, a requirement that would first need congressional authorization and may well run into utility opposition.

It also would require some easing of national secondary clean air standards protecting the environment, and that too might need congressional action.

Public Employment Means 374,000 Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — With unemployment rising sharply, President Ford proposed Tuesday a new public employment program to create up to 374,000 state and local government jobs at a cost of $2.2 billion.

In mapping his anti-inflation program to Congress, Ford said the goal would be "to provide more constructive work for Americans — young and old — who cannot find a job."

The President recommended a one-year, two-step approach that would be triggered when the national unemployment rate averaged 6 per cent or more for three months. In September, the unemployment rate jumped four-tenths of a per cent to 5.8 per cent.

In addition to creating public service jobs, 13 weeks of special unemployment insurance benefits would be provided to those who have exhausted their regular and extended benefits. And for those who qualify but who are not now covered by a regular unemployment insurance benefit program, 26 weeks of special benefits would be made available.

The White House said the new employment plan — to be known as the Community Improvement Corps — would help "cushion the loss of income due to unemployment, while enabling state and local governments to provide their citizens with a socially useful product."

Under the plan, the federal government would provide $500 million to pay for 83,000 more jobs if the unemployment level reaches an average of 6 per cent for three consecutive months; another $750 million for 125,000 jobs if it reaches 6.5 per cent; and an additional $1 billion for 166,000 jobs if the jobless rate hit 7 per cent.

The funds would be in addition to the $1 billion allocated for 170,000 jobs this winter.

State and local areas would be eligible for the funds if their jobless rates were equal to or more than 6.5 per cent, regardless of the national average.

The Community Improvement Corps will provide funds for projects such as conservation, maintenance or restoration of natural resources, community beautification, antipollution and environmental quality efforts, economic development and the improvement and expansion of health, education and recreation services, the White House explained.

The maximum annual salary a worker could earn under the program would be $7,000.

'Initial Step Positive,' HBAL Official Says

President Ford "has taken a positive initial step in stimulating housing," said Charles Brazie, executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Lincoln.

Brazie was commenting on Ford's proposal to free $3 billion in government subsidies for mortgage purchases — enough to finance about 100,000 homes.

In his address Tuesday, the President urged Congress to enact the Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974, now pending in Congress. The bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., would provide a total of $10 billion for purchase of mortgages.

"We are assuming he (Ford) will eventually release the other $7 billion," Brazie said. "But we know he has to feel his way to see what reactions take place to each of his actions."

Brazie said he figures $3 billion will result in about 50,000 new housing starts and financing of another 50,000 existing homes.

However, with the $10 billion in government subsidies, there would be 175,000 new houses built, he said, which would create 325,000 man year of employment and would probably cost only $150 million for processing and fees.

In the long-run, Brazie figures the federal government would come up with a net profit of $550 million because of the building action more mortgage money would create.

The federal government would pull in $700 million in taxes, state governments would get back $51 million and local real estate taxes would swell by $93 million, he said.

The homebuilding industry has also been pushing another change that would make interest on the first $1,000 in savings accounts tax-exempt.

"We are sorry," Brazie said, "that the President did not touch on that other solution. We felt it would have a two-barrel effect."

"One would be to generate more mortgage money and the other would be to possibly cut back some luxury purchases."

"We are gratified though that he identified housing as one of his 10 critical areas and that he is going to release $3 billion immediately," he said.

Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — A sunny astrological day in the good year of 1974. We get the morning scam from the astrology column.

"One who is jealous of you may try your patience. Keep your temper. Avoid motion and travel."

That is not a very good forecast. Fortunately, I take two papers. The star-gazer in the other journal says:

"The past days of strife are over. New energy comes to you! Opportunity knocks! Expect a sudden windfall."

Now that's better. That's much better. Don't keep all your astrological eggs in one basket, mate.

This is interesting journalism. The reader can take his pick. Believe the astrologer with the happiest outlook.

If I had tried that on our city editor, all hell would have popped. Reporters were supposed to have the same information. (For some reason, city editors always believe the man on the opposition paper.)

On a cold night two-alarm fire, the rival paper's story said: "Occupants of the hotel fled to the street scantily clad."

The city editor said to me coldly: "How did you miss that interesting fact?"

I said: "Holy mother, they were wearing overcoats. It was cold as billy-o."

He said: "In a lifetime of journalism, I have never seen a night fire where occupants did not flee scantily clad." He said: "You've got to be aggressive."

This is birthday month. I am Libra. Ruled by beautiful Venus. A joy around the scatter. A ray of sunshine.

I said to the moppets: "Pick up your blasted clothes! Hear the news?"

Even a Libran — the just, the wise, the sign of the Scales — can be pushed too far.

On the next night fire, I wrote: "The occupants fled to the street, scantily clad."

Next day a woman called the editor. She said: "I was in that fire. I want you to know I walked downstairs. Fully dressed. I'm calling my lawyer."

The city editor said to me: "Are you trying to get us in a libel suit?"

I said: "You said they all are scantily clad in night fires."

He said: "Watch it. Think about it."

Think about it, I thought? I wasn't getting paid to think. Just get the scanty facts. Watch what? Watch out, I decided.

Young reporters are expendable. And the way to expend them is to let them work the night shift and go out to fires.

We stood out in the cold, cold night. The opposition reporter and I. One of the people from the hotel had a parrot. We decided that the fire was discovered by the parrot who cried: "God help us all, the house is on fire!"

We phoned that in to each of our papers. Both city editors were delighted. My city editor said at last it looked like I was getting the facts.

I said: "Yessir."

—Souring Fast, Palmyra

ACTION LINE: There's no sweet hope in sight for the caramelized apple lover soured by high price tags on caramels.

Esther Wyant, Lancaster County extension agent, said you could make your own caramels. But all the recipes she could find called for heaps of sugar, dark corn syrup, cream and butter. Supplying the proper ingredients would probably cost more than the candy and besides, she said, there's a real trick to making candy.

Magazines now are bound with rubberized or plastic glue that will not break down in water during the recycling process causing machine clogging, he said. Consequently, there's no real use for them.

ACTION LINE: Clinton Schlake, assistant manager of Walgreen Drug, 1301 O St., said orders using the coupons are not pro-rated by the number of prints returned. Without the coupon, the 13 prints would have cost you $3.46.

Nothing is gained by using the coupon if several negatives can't be printed, he said, adding that if you'd like your two cents back and a more complete explanation of the situation, stop in and visit with him sometime soon.

Today's Garbage May Be Next Year's Highway

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Every week seems to bring a new development in productive uses for garbage. Joseph F. Wilkinson is managing editor of Engineering News-Record, McGraw-Hill's construction weekly magazine.)

By JOSEPH E. WILKINSON
New York — Next year's highway may be this year's garbage.

With the cost of highway construction rising relentlessly — it's now 40% over what it was a year ago — the U.S. Department of Transportation and many state highways are investigating cheaper building materials. Nothing is cheaper than garbage; most communities pay to have it taken away. So, across the country there are projects experimenting with the use of domestic solid wastes as a highway construction material.

Highways are paved with either asphaltic concrete (most people call it blacktop) or Portland cement concrete, the gray-white surface. The greatest element, by volume, in either material is aggregate, which is the technical term for small stones. Aggregate comes either from natural gravel pits or by crushing large rocks.

Many big cities find aggregate expensive these days, either because steadily growing demands outstrip supply or because the source of aggregate is so far away that haulage costs are high. Research and experimentation around the country has shown that various forms of domestic solid waste can help ease the aggregate shortage.

For instance, Americans throw away 11.1 million tons of glass a year and glass is a material that is harder than most of the rock used for aggregate.

Omaha Was First
Looking into this interesting thought, researchers at the University of Missouri at Rolla developed a paving material called glasphalt, in which crushed glass was mixed with sand and asphalt, replacing some or all of the aggregate. Omaha was the first city in the U.S. to use it. An overlay of glasphalt covers a block-long section in the central business district. Tests made in comparison with a nearby block covered with conventional asphaltic concrete have shown the glasphalt provides better traction for vehicles and the designers predict it will wear better.

In Royal Oak, Mich., a suburb of Detroit, a 1.2-acre parking lot has been paved with glasphalt as a wearing surface. Its base surface is paved with an asphaltic concrete whose aggregate is a mixture of crushed glass and crushed used concrete, another common solid waste.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, enough glass bottles and jars are thrown out annually to provide a maintenance layer of glasphalt on 300 miles of four-lane highway each year.

Every year we discard 200 million tires. Since rubber has proved to be so durable and resilient for travel for automobiles, several state highway departments and the transportation department's federal highway administration have begun to research the use of ground-up tires as a form of aggregate for asphaltic concrete. The thinking is that the rubber will give a longer life to the pavement and reduce cracking caused by extremes of temperature.

The whole mix of domestic waste — beer cans, soda bottles, the kitchen sink, newspapers, banana skins, old socks, refrigerators, food cans may also play a role in the highway construction. There are about 300 incinerator plants around the U.S. that burn municipal refuse and they produce about 10 million tons of ash, or residue. In most incinerators, the resulting ash is mostly metals and glass with ceramic, dirt and fly ash mixed in. Most communities have to spend money to get rid of this residue. In many cities the available sites for landfill are getting so far away that transportation becomes uneconomical.

A street in Baltimore was paved in 1972 with a base layer in which incinerator residue accounted for half the aggregate. A test section is scheduled this year for Houston in which incinerator residue will account for the aggregate in asphaltic base layer.

Not only can incinerator residue as a substitute for aggregate dispose undesirable waste, it can save money. In Baltimore, at the time of the experiment, it cost the city $4 a ton to dispose of incinerator residue and the city expected the price to rise soon to $6 or $7. The cost of natural aggregate is $3 per ton.

The following is a list of exceptions to the parts covered by Chrysler Corporation's new 12 month unlimited mileage warranty.*

1. Tires

* The first asterisk that gives instead of taking away.

There are some expensive things that could just "wear out" if you drive enough miles even though they're not "defective." Brake linings. Mufflers. Shock absorbers. So we put that asterisk up there to tell you that we'll replace those parts if they wear out during the first 12 months of normal use, no matter how many miles you drive.

We ask you to take care of the little items.

Of course, we'd like you to handle some of the things you'd just naturally expect to take care of. You know, normal maintenance like replacing wiper blades and filters when it's needed (unless they're defective in which case they fall under the warranty).

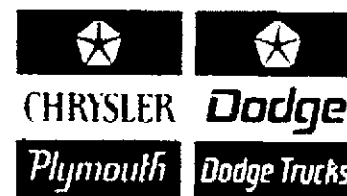

And we won't leave you alone in the night.

If you make an appointment in advance for warranty work and it can't be finished from morning until evening of the same working day, participating dealers will supply you with a loaner. Free of charge.

Now, if an Owner Care Program like that sounds great to you, imagine what our cars are like.

Find out about both. Ask your Dodge, or Chrysler-Plymouth dealer about his cars. Then, ask him about "The Clincher!"

"THE CLINCHER!"

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Wednesday

MOON in Gemini is laughter — that among other things — but the laugh is there and it surfaces and makes itself known and tends to dominate, even to the point of being foolish, generous, charming, weird. The Moon in Gemini can be scattered, versatile, restless, probing, curious, unsure, enthusiastic. The Moon in Gemini is as different from the Moon in Taurus, for one example, as a darling left jab would be from a plodding, overweight, stubborn, rumbling giant. Get your local astrology buff to tell you which sign is occupied by your Moon!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be rebellious. The status quo becomes heavy, burdensome. Give yourself room for change — let family member know that you do have life of your own to live. Don't feel guilty about asking questions and insisting on answers. You'll be happier.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do plenty of listening as relatives make provocative statements. Maintain balance, humor. Patience, diplomacy now are your real allies. Control impulse to speak out and to squish argument which lacks basis in fact. Give those close to you a chance to speak, even if they say nothing!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure that you are seeing what is not what you want to see. Be realistic. Avoid any tendency towards self-deception. Money and how you agree about that subject with mate, partner — that is highlighted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Circle is such that you make moves, assertions and results come quickly. Be ready — don't promise more than you can deliver. Means chips are down and you can win — but only if prepared for extra pressure, time and effort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You gain special insights. Areas which had been hidden could open for you. Sagittarius, Aries and Libra persons could figure in important ways. Advancement is made if you are dealing with "real" people. Means step clear of showy balloons who flatter and talk but lack substance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Study Leo message for valid hint. Be ready to dump those who use you and give nothing in return. Accent is on association which has made you weary — and should make you wary. Money is involved and someone wants something for nothing — from you!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Hunch is in picture and it's almost true. Means you will get along with professional superior you will praise a friend and you could get promoted! Aquarius, Leo individuals may be in picture. You come alive and have proverbial second chance to show your abilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are here there and apparently everywhere as social activity accelerates. You receive privileged information — but take time to verify it. Accent is on long-distance communications, travel, access to confidential sources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your work methods, procedures could come under scrutiny. There is no need for fear, cynicism. Frank, forthright attitude now serves your best purposes. What has been obscured, or a hidden expense, will come to light.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You made commitment in past, almost forgotten, which is due to surface. Involves co-operative effort, partner, mate. Contract is likely to be in picture. Check file for legal document. Be ready — have material at hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Basic issues, including health and employment, tend to dominate. Taurus, Libra persons are in picture. What was promised may have a hook, a catch, a drawback. Know it and look into it. Don't expect anything to be handed you on proverbial silver platter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Some cold water is apt to splash on some of your hopes, wishes. Few now is to "revise" to "perfect" to "trim fat." Be realistic — get rid of notions based on self-deception. Be fact as they exist and you will benefit.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of drama, showmanship — you also have integrity and will fight when cause is right. Aries, Libra people play significant roles in your life. April was important this year — changes occur this month and member of opposite sex involved. If single or separated from spouse, greater happiness is due — sooner than you think.

Demos Chances Good In Omaha, West Nebraska Congressional Races

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Democrats are given an unusually good chance of winning this year's pair of paradoxical Omaha and outstate congressional contests.

It is in the staunchly Republican western and central Nebraska Third District where the Democratic nominee is widely believed to have the better opportunity to win. Those 61 counties are roughly 57% Republican.

The Democrat in the Omaha-dominated Second District is challenging an incumbent congressman and is considered to be an underdog — but a strong one. That's the district where Douglas County Democratic voter registration is 27,000 larger than Republican registration.

Demo In 1958

And yet, it is the Republican Third District which most recently elected a Democratic congressman. That was in 1958, when it was a smaller western Nebraska district.

A Democrat last won a congressional seat in the Democratic Omaha district in 1948.

The featured players in this political paradox are Republican Congressman John Y. McCollister and Democratic challenger Dan Lynch in the Second, and Republican Mrs. Haven Smith and Democrat Wayne Ziebarth in the Third.

If Mrs. Smith wins, she would become the first woman ever elected by Nebraskans to a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. A woman, the late Hazel Abel of Lincoln, was elected to a short two-month term in the Senate in 1954.

22% Of Vote

Mrs. Smith, 63, defeated seven male opponents in the May primary election, winning the GOP nomination with a scant 22% of the vote.

Meanwhile, Ziebarth, 53, eased to the Democratic nomination in a two-candidate scrap.

November's winner will claim the seat of Republican Congressman Dave Martin, who is retiring after seven terms. He knocked out the 1958 Democratic winner in 1960, and his latest re-election victory in 1972 was fashioned with pluralities in all 61 counties and 70% of the total vote.

But the safe and sure Republican district is now up for grabs, disturbed by the state of the American economy and alarmed about the economic woes of agriculture. Whether that means it will turn Democratic, is unresolved.

Conservative Demo

Ziebarth, a former (1969-73) state senator, is a Democrat, yet he is safely conservative for the voters of the big Third.

Like Mrs. Smith, he talks about too much government, bureaucratic centralism and balancing the federal budget.

Her campaign is powered by personal enthusiasm, best on display when she addresses fellow Republicans.

The campaign's biggest flap revolved about a non-issue which, nevertheless, could ultimately determine the winner.

If there is a reluctance to elect women in Nebraska (its 49-member Legislature has but a single female member), it could be most evident in the agricultural Third, where women's liberation is not a way of life.

Said Misunderstanding

Ziebarth, at one point, suggested that a woman's place is in the home. Later, responding to criticism, he said he had been misunderstood. What he meant, he said, was that he and his wife had reached such a conclusion in their own family life.

The wife of a Chappell wheat farmer, Mrs. Smith has long been active in political and governmental affairs.

Best known for her 20 years of service as a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors, she was national chairman of the 1970-71 President's Task Force on Rural Development.

Ziebarth, a grain and livestock farmer at Wilcox and a 1972 candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, was best known as a state senator for his sponsorship of legislation leading to the creation of a statewide system of community colleges.

Third Term Sought

In the Second District, McCollister is seeking his third term. The last time out, in 1972, he won 64% of the total vote in piling up a 50,000-vote margin.

A former Douglas County commissioner, the 53-year-old congressman has developed into the smoothest, most polished member of the Nebraska congressional delegation.

McCollister is the only member of that delegation who can make effective use of that most important of political media, television.

Lynch, 45, chairman of the Douglas County board of commissioners, swept into the general election campaign with a surprisingly decisive (he won 63% of the vote) primary drubbing of Omaha City Councilman John Hlavacek, a former television personality with all the name recognition advantages.

He is given a good chance of upsetting McCollister because, unlike other recent Democratic congressional nominees, Lynch is acceptable to all major elements of the widely disparate Democratic establishment in Omaha, including county officeholders, organized labor, liberals and the regular party organization.

Lynch has tried to capitalize on McCollister's business background (oil), his acceptance of campaign contributions from the oil and dairy industries and the congressman's record of past support for most of the policies of President Nixon.

McCollister points to a record of some independence from the former President. He sharply criticized Nixon's role in Watergate investigations as early as last October, and was ready to vote for impeachment when the President resigned.

Lynch says he is more representative of the people of the Second District. Now a plumbing contractor in a family business, he is a plumber by trade.

Rep. Hogan Sees Himself As Victim Of Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Larry Hogan, the first of the House Judiciary Committee's swing Republicans to announce a pro-impeachment stand, sees himself as a victim of the Watergate scandal.

Earlier this month, Hogan lost the Maryland Republican gubernatorial primary, an election he had been expected to win.

He attributes his defeat to demands of the Judiciary Committee and to his headline-making announcement that he favored impeaching Richard Nixon.

"I did not have time to prepare for my candidacy," Hogan said. Judiciary committee business, "took up all of my campaign time until a few weeks before the election. Many Republicans would not forgive me for voting against Nixon."

The anti-Nixon Republicans stayed at home for Maryland's Sept. 10 primary, Hogan said, "but the pro-Nixon people went out there to get even with Hogan."

Hogan says the Watergate scandal discouraged voters and resulted in a low turnout.

"If there had been a big turnout, I think I would have won," he said. "I considered withdrawing when I announced my vote. I thought: This is the end of my gubernatorial campaign."

His supporters convinced him to continue, but Hogan's gubernatorial aspirations ground to a halt when long-time party worker Louise Gore, running a quiet campaign talking to party regulars and ladies' teas, walked off with the nomination.

Election—1974 Dyas Campaign Using Computer

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

It's been a full decade since Democrats elected a congressman in Nebraska.

And it last happened in the First District, where two-term Republican Congressman Charles Thone this year faces the best-organized, most generously financed Democratic congressional challenger in state political history.

Hess Dyas, the 37-year-old former (1970-74) Democratic state chairman, is conducting a campaign whose costs are expected to reach six figures, unheard of for a Nebraska congressional contender.

His campaign organization has computerized the 27-county eastern Nebraska district (which includes Lincoln), selecting 300 target precincts where most of the energy and time will be expended.

The candidate himself has been campaigning full time since Feb. 1, highlighting his efforts with Nebraska's first campaign walkathon, a 734-mile trek across every county in the district.

Thone Favored

But Thone remains the pollster's favorite in a traditionally "swing" district which turned sharply Republican two years ago.

First District congressional contests had been tight affairs until 1972, when Thone won going away with 64% of the total vote.

A conservative congressman, the 50-year-old former (1959-61) Republican state chairman has successfully cultivated the image of an independent thinker.

Thone has made much of his occasional departures from Republican or White House positions — and those votes (including opposition to development of the supersonic transport and to public funding for Lockheed) have helped him in the Capital City, Nebraska's island of moderate political thought.

"A public relations congressman," Dyas calls him.

Solid Base

But, whether the image was constructed with puffery or substance, it has helped solidify Thone's political base in a district which includes highly conservative cattle feeding counties in northern Nebraska and the university-government complex in Lincoln.

Even among Democrats, Thone is often grudgingly recognized as the most open-minded member of Nebraska's Republican congressional delegation.

Thone has showered his constituency with attention, and is pointing Lincoln voters' eyes toward a number of local public works projects which have been assisted by federal funds, including a new federal office building.

Dyas is a more liberal alternative to Thone's basic conservatism.

The Democratic contender has called for an array of programs, including expanded Medicare coverage, increased Social Security benefits, major tax reforms, more aggressive agricultural policies emphasizing the family farm and some old-fashioned trust-busting.

'Attitude Toward Worker'

The "most clear cut difference" between the two contenders is his attitude toward legislation to help the working man, Dyas contends. He has the traditional Democratic support from organized labor.

While the state of the economy is likely to be the biggest issue on the voter's mind, Dyas probably stood to gain from prolongment of the Nixon agony in the White House.

When it ended abruptly with the President's resignation, the Thone campaign was almost visibly buoyed.

Thone had delayed any judgment of Nixon as long as he could. But by the time the President resigned, he was on record in favor of impeachment.

Name A Problem

The major political problem for Dyas has been name recognition. Even though he has been prominent in Democratic Party affairs for years, he had to begin almost from scratch in terms of voter identification.

A year's campaign, which will be topped in the closing weeks by mass media advertising, was designed to resolve that problem.

For Dyas, Lincoln is crucial. His campaign strategists admit that he must win it if he hopes to be elected, and he would probably need at least 55% of a large Lincoln vote.

Thone's campaigning has been limited by congressional chores — but most of his weekends are spent back home.

His big political coup comes on Oct. 16, when President Ford will stop in Lincoln at Thone's request to lend his support. The President will speak in behalf of all Republican nominees, but he will do so in Thone's home district.

Meyer Investigating Lease 'Rip-Off' Charge

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday said he has called in the attorney general's office to determine whether in fact a state lease for Omaha office space is a "$3 million rip-off" as Republicans have charged.

The 15-year lease by the State Labor Department for an office building owned in part by Mike Jackson, a Democrat and Exon associate, came up Tuesday when State Sen. Richard Marvel, Republican candidate for governor, announced his legislative Budget Committee will investigate the lease.

Calling Marvel's action "a political cheap shot," Exon told a Lincoln Rotary Club meeting he had asked Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, a Republican, for an evaluation of the lease's legality over a week ago.

Proof Of Misuse

In response to a question, Exon said Marvel's Budget Committee investigation is "further proof of the misuse of his office" for political ends.

Exon said, "There has been no collusion, no pay-offs and no favoritism shown" in the lease.

Exon said Meyer, as yet, has not replied about the lease's legality. However, when the lease was signed, it was approved by the attorney general's office and by the federal government.

Republicans allege the lease was "very favorable" to Jackson, no competitive bids were taken and the state could have bought or leased other quarters at more reasonable rates.

Marvel has scheduled the first meeting looking into the matter for 2 p.m., Thursday in the Capitol.

Exon To Appear?

Witnesses will be asked to appear, including Exon. He did not say whether he plans to participate in the meeting.

Exon said once he receives the attorney general's report, "I'll decide what action I should take."

Exon also took the opportunity before the Rotarians to renew his call for a federal Food and Fiber Board to stabilize agricultural prices and supplies.

He referred the Ford Administration's decision to cancel a 125 million bushel grain deal with Russia "the latest foul-up by the U.S. Department of Agriculture."

The cancellation of the deal, he said, caused grain prices to plummet to record lows for one day. Because of this, he predicted

Sen. Clark Will Head Lease Probe

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the legislature's Budget Committee, says a probe has been ordered into a 15-year, office building lease agreement between the state and an Omaha firm.

Marvel, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, told newsmen here Tuesday that "Governor Exon has not made any explanation of this deal other than to say he signed it routinely."

Under criticism is a lease agreement between the Jado Investment Co., and the State Labor Department.

Douglas County Republican officials have charged that there may be some political motive in the signing of the lease because Jado is partially owned by Michael Jackson, a Democratic candidate for the Douglas County Board. Jackson was active in Exon's successful campaign in 1970.

that U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz is "not going to be around too long."

Leniency Hint

In response to another question, Exon said he felt some legitimate criticism has been leveled at the courts for being too lenient with law-breakers.

Police officers, he said, practically have to know as much as a U.S. Supreme Court judge before they can make an arrest.

Exon said he was recently concerned about the release of a man on $5,000 bond in connection with a shooting which killed a worker riding in a railroad car.

"There's been too much permissiveness, but the pendulum is starting to swing back in the right direction," he said.

Economist: Outlook Bad For Feed Grain Supplies

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The outlook for feed grain supplies presents the U.S. cattle industry with more bad news in a time of depressed beef markets, an Iowa State University economist said Tuesday.

Bob Wisner told a U.S. Department of Agriculture regional beef seminar that feed grains are expected to be in tight supply through next year with continued high prices for such basic feed items as corn and soybeans.

Wisner's address added more bad news to an already grim outlook for cattle industry officials, who are seeking solutions for the cost-price squeeze now affecting the industry. Earlier in the day, the beef men were told the market depression is not likely to ease for two more years.

A USDA world beef market specialist told about 100 seminar participants that the situation is worldwide with an oversupply of animals at a time when production costs have soared.

Ed J. Eisenach told the seminar cattlemen all over the world have been hit with rising costs and plummeting prices, resulting in large numbers of cattle waiting to go to market.

In his presentation, Wisner said a new crop estimate for feed grains, which will be issued Thursday, probably will show another cutback in the expected crop, possibly by as much as 4 per cent.

Wisner estimated the new crop figure will be set at about 4.8 billion bushels of corn, a 15 per cent reduction from one year ago. Soybean production is expected to be down about 16 per cent from last year, with a total crop of about 1.3 billion bushels, he said.

Reduced feeding of livestock already appears to be occurring as stockmen cut back in the face of higher grain prices, he said. And the result may be that feed grains will not run short, though the carryover probably will be the lowest in more than 20 years.

Wisner estimated feed grain carryover will be about one month's supply before the 1975 crop is harvested.

"This will mean we will have a very nervous feed grain market for the next 12 months until we get a good reading on the 1975 crop," he said.

An even more critical feed problem confronting cattlemen appears to be in hay supplies, Wisner added. He said projected production is about equal to past usage and states from Nebraska to Texas are in particularly short supply. The result may be a 40 to 70 per cent increase in hay prices, the Iowa State economist said.

American cattlemen are not the only ones taking a beating in the roller-coaster beef market, Eisenach told the seminar. He said producer prices in Australia have dropped from $47.50 per hundred pounds to $20 and are now the lowest since 1964.

Food Stamp Suit Plaintiffs To Shift

By The Associated Press

Attorneys say a suit will be filed in U.S. District Court in Omaha, alleging the state and federal governments have failed to inform thousands of Nebraskans of their right to food stamps, as required by law.

Don Sanders, an attorney with Panhandle Legal Services Inc., of Scottsbluff, said he would dismiss an existing suit on file in U.S. District Court here, in order to refile the action to allow other plaintiffs to join the suit.

"The suit that we are going to file will be exactly the same as the existing one, only the plaintiffs will be changed," Sanders said, to involve people in Omaha's urban area.

The thrust of the suit is that the State of Nebraska failed to comply with the federal Food Stamp Act, which requires states to "undertake effective action . . . To inform low income households concerning the availability and benefits of the Food Stamp Program and insure the participation of such households."

'Outreach' Program

The suit asks the court, in effect, to order the state to undertake a prescribed "outreach" program to let Nebraskans know of the food stamps' availability. The existing suit contends that some 246,157 Nebraskans are eligible for food stamps, but that only 46,191 are receiving them.

The suit says that disparity is the result of the state's failure to establish an outreach program, as mandated by Congress, and from the USDA's failure to make sure the states follow regulations which require the outreach programs.

Defendants named in the existing suit are Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, two other USDA officials, Alan H. Hims, director of the Nebraska Department of Public Welfare, and Russell Wallace, food stamp director for the State of Nebraska.

Omahan Killed When Branch Falls On Him

Omaha (AP) — An off-duty Omaha fireman was killed Monday afternoon when a large tree branch fell on him.

Officials said Richard A. Crofford, 27, was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital shortly after noon.

Paul A. Molck, another off-duty fireman, told police that he and Crofford were trimming the tree when the mishap occurred.

Molck said he was in the tree, and Crofford was on the ground, holding a rope that was attached to the large branch.

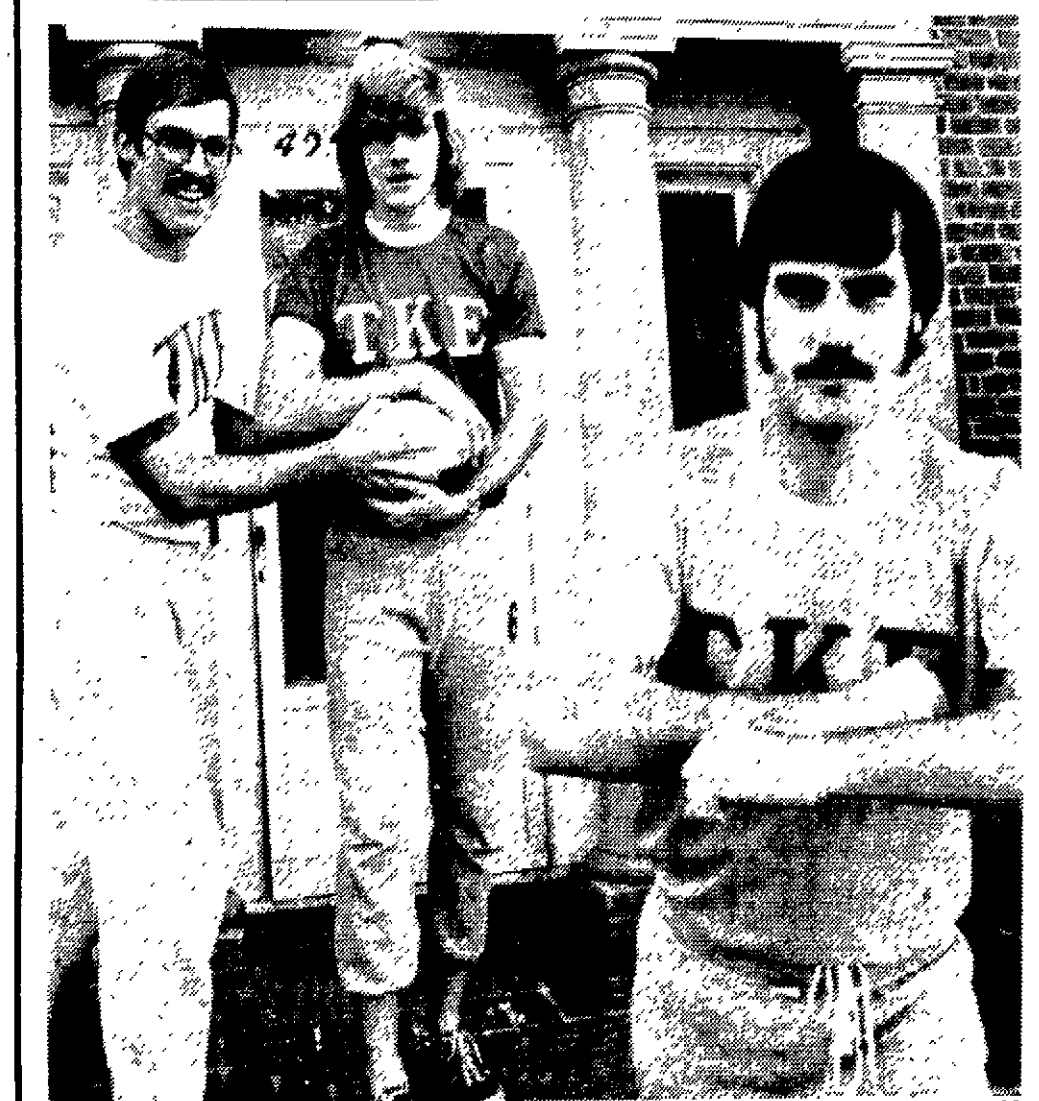

When Molck sawed the branch off, the rope pulled Crofford into the path of the falling limb. The branch struck Crofford on the head.

Molck said Crofford apparently wrapped the guide rope around his hand, and was unable to free himself when the branch fell.

250,000th Meal Milestone For Agency

By JOEL THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau
South Sioux City — A hungry senior citizen will sit down to lunch here next week and eat the 250,000th meal served by the Walthill-based Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency (GHCAA) to elderly residents of its five-county area.

Local and federal government officials will attend an observance of the event, according to GHCAA administrative assistant John Fickler. The observance will take place in the American Legion Hall at noon

Tuesday, Oct. 21.
Lunches are prepared by GHCAA staff members and served to the elderly in their homes and in senior citizens' centers located in South Sioux City, Homer, Hartington, Walthill, Decatur and Hubbard. Fickler said. Another center in Lyons has been proposed, he added.

School Bond Issue Meets Defeat

Atkinson (AP) — Residents of the West Holt School District rejected a $290,000 bond issue. The vote was 238 in favor and 439 against. The money would have been used for an addition to the high school.

KSC Enrollment Tops Expectations

Kearney (AP) — President Brendan McDonald said fall enrollment at Kearney State College totaled 5,072, surpassing expectations by about 10%. Dr. McDonald said the total was up 4.6% from last fall. He said a 6% decrease had been expected.

Doory Zoo Given Recognition

Omaha (AP) — The Henry Doory Zoo has been honored by the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums. The zoo was one of three honored with a special recognition award in Philadelphia. The award was for successfully breeding and rearing golden lion marmosets in captivity. These are rare, endangered primates, native of the Brazilian jungle.

New Gering Junior High Building Eyed

Gering (UPI) — The Gering Board of Education next Monday will hold interviews for a fiscal agent to handle details of a bond election in the first step toward building a new junior high school. The board heard recommendations from a citizens advisory committee that the present junior high building be torn down and a new one built on the same site. The 15-member committee was formed last August.

Mrs. Smith, Ziebarth Set To Debate

Kearney (AP) — The two candidates for Nebraska's Third Congressional District seat will debate Oct. 19 at the fall meeting of the Nebraska Associated Press Broadcasters at Kearney. Republican candidate Mrs. Haven Smith and Democratic contender Wayne Ziebarth both have accepted invitations to appear at the one-day meeting at the Fort Kearney Inn.

Western College Enrollment Climbs

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Fall enrollment at Nebraska Western College here is up 5.5% from last year, dean of admissions Pat Lee said Tuesday. The total of 761 students includes 454 freshmen, Lee said. The enrollment a year ago was 720.

Monument Rocks Slide

Scottsbluff (AP)—Park Service officials say a major rock slide occurred at the Scotts Bluff National Monument Monday afternoon.

An estimated several hundred tons of sandstone dislodged from the southeast face of the towering butte, falling to the base of the monument.

Officials said the slide did get near the footpath which encircles the monument, but that the path is in no danger.

There was no cause given for the first major slide from the monument in a number of years.

The incident did not cause any structural alterations.

Kawasaki Plant Access Road Approved By Commissioners

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday approved a contract agreement with Kawasaki Motor Corp. for the construction of a road south of the Kawasaki plant.

The agreement calls for Kawasaki to pay the $56,133.85 cost of the seven-inch thick asphalt road. Then the county is to reimburse the company for 50% of the cost in the next fiscal year.

When representatives of Kawasaki and the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce had requested the commissioners to pay for the access road, the County Board had informed them that there were no funds appropriated for such a purpose.

However, an agreement was later worked out with both Kawasaki and Crete Carrier whereby the county would eventually reimburse the companies for half the cost of access roads.

The board approved the contract for Crete Carrier at last week's meeting.

In other action, the board approved the agreement between the county and Lincoln General Hospital for the transfer of property which results in an exchange of parking lots to serve the hospital and the county's offices in the Lancaster County Health and Welfare complex adjacent to the hospital at 2200 St. Mary's.

The board deferred action pending a county attorney's opinion on a request from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) for recognition by the board of the union as a bargaining agent for county welfare employees.

David Newell, union representative, said such sanction would expedite the matter since the election involving other county employees was by a wide margin in favor of the union and the sanctions of welfare employees indicate favor by that group.

However, the board indicated that it was not sure that it was the proper body to recognize the union for welfare employees since the majority of their salaries are paid by state funds.

Newell said that there had been an attorney general's opinion stating that the County Board is the proper authority, but the board members stated that they would not act until they receive an opinion from the county attorney.

Teacher Named Group Historian

Plus X High School teacher Donna Barry has been named historian of the Alpha Upsilon chapter of Delta Phi Epsilon, an honorary fraternity for men and women in business education.

The chapter was established at the University of Nebraska in 1966. Other officers named include president C. D. Pickering of Syracuse, Avoca High School; vice president Joan Anderson of Omaha Westside High School; and treasurer Sherry Rains of Wilber High School.

Voter Registration Deadline Oct. 25

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Tuesday that Oct. 25 would be the last day to register to vote for the Nov. 5 general election.

County court houses will be open Oct. 25 until 6 p.m. local time to register voters, Beermann said.

Citizens can also register to vote with election commissioners or deputy registrars.

He said voters have to re-register if they have changed addresses since they last registered. Voter registration remains valid, he said, even if a citizen failed to vote in the May primary or the 1972 general election.

Beermann said 400,000 Nebraskans eligible to vote are not registered. He said registration lists now contain about 700,000 names.

Absentee ballots are now available, he said, and will be available through the mail until Nov. 1. Voters will be able to cast absentee ballots in the office of the county clerk until Nov. 4.

Nebraska's three congressional seats are up for election along with the governor and the rest of the state officials. There will be three minor constitutional amendments on the ballot including one which would place a student on the board of regents as a nonvoting member.

The state aid to education issue could be put to the people, but the matter is still pending in the state Supreme Court.

Beermann said there will be more than 200 cities voting on fluoridation. There will also be elections in some areas for board members for local school boards, natural resource districts, technical community college, and public power district board members.

Four state school board seats will be up for election and many judges will face a yes-no vote on retention.

Beermann said sample ballots would be published in at least one newspaper in every county in Nebraska so that voters could make their selections before going to the polls.

Lawyer Would Revamp Courts

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The problem of a bloated supreme Court docket must be attacked from the bottom up, lawyer and author John P. Frank says. In Lincoln Tuesday to deliver the Cline-Williams lecture, through the sponsorship of the University of Nebraska College of Law, Frank said he feels the problem of court congestion should be approached by eliminating some of the work rather than shifting the work load.

The number of cases filed in the Supreme Court have risen from 1,321 in 1950 to about 6,000 today.

'Warrants Relief'

"It is clearly enough of a burden to warrant some relief," Frank said.

Frank told an overflow student and faculty audience the volume of criminal appeals is bogging down our court system.

Any errors or complaints in the convictions of criminal cases must be reviewed at the lowest level, Frank said, so grounds for endless appeals are cut off.

Frank says he advocates solving the "problem of the gorged federal system by shrinking the stomach a little: the cure is to eat less."

20% Appeals

Cases challenging criminal convictions after the convictions represented 20% of the cases in the district courts in 1972. This load moves up, Frank said, noting such cases then became 15% of the docket in the U.S. Court of Appeals and finally represented 40% of the total cases filed in the Supreme Court.

Frank expressed approval of a proposal by Judge Clement Haynsworth of the U.S. Court of Appeals of the 4th Circuit that would create a mini Supreme Court which would consider appeals only on the question of whether the defendant was deprived of any federal constitutional rights in the course of his trial. Convictions of this court could be under the review of the U.S. Supreme Court, Frank added.

However, Frank said any new system which seeks to eliminate the evils of the present system must not "cut back on the right of every citizen to be imprisoned or fined only after a proceeding that meets constitutional standards."

The ultimate problem, he said, is "whether those values can be secured without the waste and side-effects of the present system."

National Court Proposed

Frank also spoke of another proposal that would create a national circuit court which, in addition to reviewing criminal matters, could also handle surplus business from the Supreme Court.

FRANK . . . 'appeals bog down system.'

However, major changes in the court systems take years to evolve, he said.

"This is a good thing," he added. "We will be in business for a long time."

Now in private practice in Phoenix, Ariz., Frank previously taught at Indiana and Yale universities. He has written eight books on the law, including "The Warren Court," and is a member of the American Law Institute.

Regents To Hear Plan For Rural Health

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents Saturday will hear a special report recommending three ways to help alleviate the acute shortage of rural health professionals, particularly doctors.

NU President D. B. Varner created the 17-member Nebraska Rural Health Task Force, chaired by Donald R. Treadway of Fullerton, as an outgrowth of a "Rural Health Challenges" symposium at the NU Medical Center in Omaha early this year.

The group of medical professionals and laymen, assisted by regents, will recommend that NU:

— establish an Office of Health Manpower Recruitment.

— increase the number of family practice residencies at the Medical Center.

— Ask the Legislature to establish and fund a student loan incentive program for medical students who agree to practice in rural Nebraska.

Ideas Discarded

Other recommendations were investigated and discarded, Treadway said in his report. The task force explored rural practice economics, emergency medical services, geographical distribution of health personnel and services, college of medicine admission policies, continuing education for health personnel and student counseling toward rural locations.

The recommendations adopted are based on data compiled by the NU Medical Center staff, the State Department of Revenue, Nebraska and American Medical Associations consultants, and private studies and reports by task force members.

Treadway wrote that the group considered its recommendations "not only from the medical aspect, but also from the economic impact that the lack of physicians imposes upon small Nebraska towns."

At its first meeting in March, the task force members agreed that rather than limiting their definition of "rural," they would direct their study to all parts of Nebraska outside Lincoln and Omaha.

Loan-Repayment Program

The student loan-repayment program would be available to pursue studies in health specialties in which the state has a substantial shortage, the recommendation says.

In addition, the program would provide financial incentives for repayment or to forgive (cancel) part of the loans, to encourage individuals to practice in outstate Nebraska.

Varner said in March, "If this committee comes up with a reasoned argument for a state loan program, I'm convinced the Legislature would fund it."

The report recommends total loans to any student — with no stipulation to demonstrate financial need — should not exceed $4,500. Up to 60% of the loan, including interest, would be cancelled for at least two years practice in a rural area, and an additional 25% for a third year.

Loan Stipulations

Students who would take loans but not practice according to the agreement would be required to repay loans at an accelerated rate, with interest at commercially competitive rates. Doctors who begin the outstate practice but fail to complete the agreement would be liable for any portion of the loans that were canceled.

The report recommends the Medical Center administer the loan program. But it says its funding should be separate from the Medical Center operating budget, and should not be a substitute for any existing or future federal programs with the same objectives.

The family practice recommendation has three parts:

— Asking funding for residencies under LBI005, approved by the 1973 Legislature, be increased.

— Asking approval of the planned $8 million Medical Center ambulatorium to accommodate a larger number of residencies.

— Encouraging more Nebraska communities with hospitals to apply for the Medical Center's family practice residency four-month experience program.

Placement Plan

The proposal for a health manpower recruitment office would set up a cooperative framework throughout NU and state and private agencies to place health personnel in Nebraska.

The office would aid communities in recruiting physicians, nurses, dentists and other health professionals, and the report recommends primary Medical Center funding, or possible joint funding with agencies involved.

Sugar Refiners Boost Prices

New York (AP) — SuCrest Corp. and CPC International Inc., boosted the price of their industrial sugars Tuesday, matching the price increase posted Monday by Amstar Corp., the nation's biggest refiner.

Like Amstar, SuCrest and CPC said they were lifting the price $13 per 100 pounds of the industrial sugar, sold to candy and soft-drink manufacturers and other food fabricators.

Sugar Boycott Leader Declines Offer

Lyman (UPI) — A leader in the sugar boycott in Michigan has declined an invitation to view the sugar beet harvest in western Nebraska first hand.

Mrs. Beverly Ribaud of St. Clair Shores, Mich., said she would "just rather forget the whole thing."

Last month, Mrs. Ribaud made national headlines when she started a neighborhood sugar boycott. She was objecting to the price of sugar and blamed it on false reports of a world sugar shortage and to dividends being paid by sugar companies.

Ray Lind of Lyman, president of the Nebraska Non-Stock Beet Growers Association, invited Mrs. Ribaud to visit his farm during the sugar beet harvest, learn about the growers cost and learn about the sugar industry as a whole. Lind and his wife even offered to pay air fare and other expenses.

Mrs. Ribaud declined, citing "family commitments" and saying she "couldn't get away at this time."

Butz To Appear At Fund-Raiser In North Platte

North Platte, (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz will be in North Platte Oct. 26 for a fund-raising dinner on behalf of the Lincoln County Republican party.

Tom Hansen, chairman of the Lincoln County Republicans, said, "We think having Secretary Butz here in person will give us a tremendous opportunity to discuss agriculture with him."

"In addition it will give us an opportunity to honor him for his strong efforts on behalf of agriculture," he said.

G. I. Council Defeats Tax

Grand Island (UPI) — The city council has defeated a proposed 1% city sales tax which proponents contended would bring an estimated $1.8 million into city coffers annually.

The 4-3 council vote rejecting the sales tax followed a public hearing Monday night.

More than 100 persons packed the council chambers. The opposition contended the tax was regressive and would strike hardest at low income and elderly persons. Several businessmen said the tax would make Grand Island less competitive and drive customers to surrounding communities.

Following the hearing, councilman Larry Yost moved to table the issue for 90 days, but that motion failed on a 4-3 vote setting up the defeat by an identical margin.

'Citizens' Group To Back Aid Bill

The "Citizens Committee for 300" has been organized to seek a favorable vote on the state aid to education bill referendum in the Nov. 5 general election. Measure No. 300 on the ballot is a vote on the bill, LB772, which will shift to the state half the costs to operate Nebraska's public schools by 1976-77.

Committee co-chairmen are Helen Greene of Greenwood, a mother and housewife, and John Gottschalk, Sidney Telegraph newspaper publisher.

Lincoln Board of Education President T. E. Dewey is committee treasurer. The Lincoln board has gone on record in support of LB772.

The co-chairmen said the committee will try to enlist at least 300 community leaders from across Nebraska as members.

"What we are doing is rallying the tremendous amount of support for LB772, which already exists all across the state," Mrs. Greene and Gottschalk said.

"Equality in education for our youngsters and in the financial support system for our schools is one of the goals we are after," they said. "We recognize that in LB772, we have the law which is going to move us a long way down the road toward those goals."

The bill, expected to have State Supreme Court action soon on a Lancaster District Court ruling it may remain on the ballot, will lessen reliance for education funds on the property tax, in a shift to the state sales and income taxes.

The bill will increase annual state aid to schools from the current $35 million to more than $156 million in two years.

Membership in the non-partisan "Citizens Committee for 300" is voluntary, the co-chairpersons said.

Challenge To Aid Vote To Be Heard

The Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday agreed to hear a case challenging the right of voters to cast ballots on whether to keep a $155 million state aid to schools law on Oct. 28.

Unless the High Court overturns a lower court decision, voters will decide on Nov. 5 if they want to keep the law.

The law is intended to shift 50% of the cost of education from property taxes to sales and income taxes. The law will require a one-cent hike in the sales tax and a three percentage-point increase in the income tax rate.

Opponents of the law have circulated enough petitions to get the law put to a vote of the people. Supporters of it are attempting to block the referendum on the grounds the Constitution prohibits putting an appropriations bill to a vote of the people.

The lawsuit is being backed by the Nebraska State School Board Association.

Dog Attack Fatal To Sarpy Co. Boy

Papillion (AP) — A Sarpy County toddler died late Tuesday morning in an Omaha hospital of injuries he sustained Monday afternoon when he was apparently attacked by a neighbor's dog.

Sarpy County Sheriff Patrick Thomas identified the victim as Jeremie Slaven, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Slaven.

Thomas said the child wandered into a neighbor's yard, where the dog was chained, and got too close to the dog. The dog apparently attacked, biting the child's head and neck.

A neighbor saw the child collapse, and called for a rescue squad, Thomas said.

The dog, a Japanese Akita, a rare breed in this area, is owned by Carl Svendsen.

Thomas said the animal will be destroyed.

Charge Filed In Omaha In Motel Shooting Case

Omaha (UPI) — A charge of second degree murder was filed Tuesday against Lloyd A. Hayes, 22, in the fatal shooting Sunday night of Larry Bowman, 37, Fairfax, Okla., a former deputy sheriff.

Bowman was shot at a local Holiday Inn motel while here on cattle business, police said. Police said the case involved prostitution.

Charged with being accessories after the fact were three companions of Hayes. All four were believed to be from the Detroit, Mich., area.

Deputy Douglas County Atty. Sam Cooper said the three charged as accessories were Toni Wokabitus, 19; Donald Wilson, 22; and Sue Riley, 24.

Hayes and Miss Wokabitus still were at large Tuesday, Cooper said. Wilson and Miss Riley were in custody but were expected to post bonds, he said.

No charges had been filed against another man thought to have driven Hayes and Miss Wokabitus out of the state. They were thought to have been en route to Des Moines.

Lt. James Perry said Bowman was in the livestock business and he and a business associate had met the suspects at a South Omaha bar. The group then went to the motel where, he said, an argument ensued over "a prostitution thing that was going on."

The shooting occurred on a second-floor balcony. Bowman died of a chest wound.

Robert Roselle, NU Entomologist, Receives Award

Robert E. Roselle, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist, is this year's recipient of the director's award from the Midwest Agricultural Chemical Association, Inc.

Announcement of the award was made during the recent meeting of the organization by Association President R. W. Smedul of Des Moines, Iowa.

Roselle, a native of Missouri, has been Extension entomologist at Nebraska since 1952. He is the author of a number of publications on insect control and was instrumental in the organization of the Nebraska Pest Control Operators Association and the Nebraska Aerial Applicators Association.

In 1965 he received the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Superior Service Award.

GE Profits Up 2% In Quarter

New York (AP) — General Electric Co.'s net profit increased 2% in the third quarter on a 16% gain in sales, the company announced.

After-tax income for the three months ending Sept. 30 was $145.3 million, the company said, equal to 80 cents a share, as against $142.3 million or 78 cents a share for the like period of last year.

GE said sales for the period totaled $3.35 billion, up 16% from the $2.88 billion reported in the corresponding period of 1973.

Thone Claims U.S. 'Blackmailing' States

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., charged Tuesday that the federal government is using "blackmailing tactics" to force states into submitting to its programs.

Thone said he is preparing a congressional resolution asking that no legislation be approved threatening the loss of federal funds if state and local bodies fail to approve certain legislation.

In addition, Thone said, the resolution will call on the executive branch of government to refrain from regulations attempting to influence local legislation through withdrawal of federal funds.

"Ours is a federal system of government with a sharing of powers by national, state and local governments," Thone said. "Unless we stop the present trend, America will soon have a unitary government like Great Britain, where even the municipalities are controlled directly by the national government."

The First District Republican added that "federal interference in local matters is getting worse. The federal government is usurping constitutional state and local rights by its blackmailing tactics."

Thone said the land-use bill approved by the House interior subcommittee last year was "possibly the worst example of federal coercion" and added that the 55 m.p.h. mandatory speed limit was another.

Omaha Car Dealers Face Charges

Omaha (UPI) — Five Omaha area used car dealers face charges of altering the odometer readings on one or more motor vehicles.

The Douglas County attorney's consumer fraud prosecutor, Noel Phetteplace, said conviction on the misdemeanor charge carries a maximum $1,000 fine or a six-month jail term or both.

Phetteplace said investigation is continuing to determine further violations. He said most infractions involve alterations of 10,000 miles or more in odometer readings.

Charged with four counts is Leroy Johnson of L & J Used Cars.

Charged with two counts each are Harold A. Gardner of Western Auto Buyers Inc. and Fred C. Tubbs of Rite Way Services Inc.

Charged with one count each are Warren E. Anderson of Warren Anderson Auto Inc. and Paul Ray Tyrell of R & J Used Cars.

State law requires odometer readings to be listed on the vehicle title when it changes hands.

bump

Did you see Linus bump his head against the table?
Did you see Linus knock his head against the table?

Now he may have a bump on his head.
Now he may have a place that hurts on his head.

*New and delightful.
Now it's fun to learn words!*

SPECIAL OFFER

VOLUME ONE
NOW ON SALE...

• Here is a new and appealing way to help children learn words and their meanings. The Charlie Brown Dictionary is no ordinary work but a fresh, happy, educationally sound collection of words and definitions.

• Children love the over 600 Charles M. Schulz drawings of Charlie Brown and the Peanuts gang that brighten the pages. They respond to the definitions that are easy to read and understand.

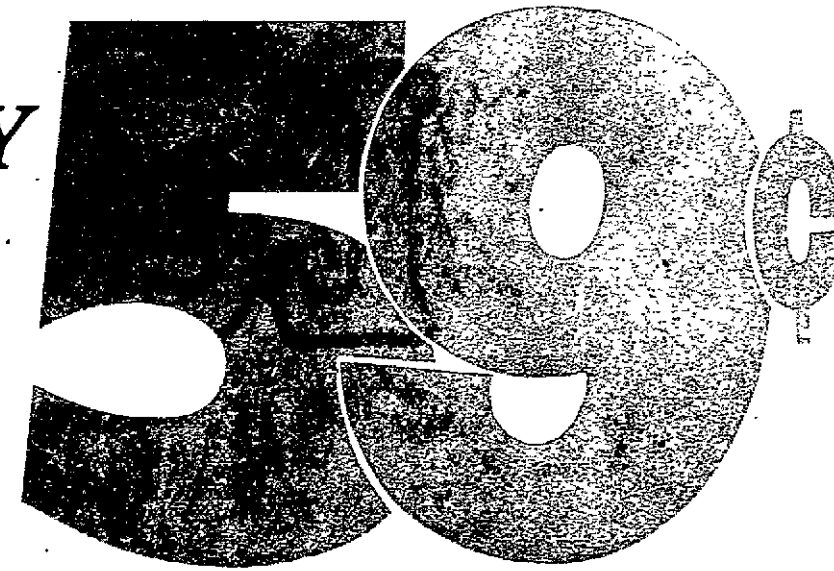

• Charlie Brown himself, Snoopy wearing his dish as a hat, Linus with his security blanket, Lucy giving advice, all help to motivate children to learn about the over 2,500 carefully chosen words defined in these volumes.

• In addition there are 53 pages of world and state maps and facts to make geography come alive.

• The Charlie Brown Dictionary uses a new educational technique developed by Wendell W. Wright, Ph.D., Dean of the School of Education, University of Indiana. The result is a true children's classic of eight colorful, hard cover volumes that belong in every home.

Detente's Effects Snowball

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow's detente policy is beginning to have snowball effects and the momentum it has gathered may produce future ticklish problems for the Kremlin leaders.

After 25 or more years of postponing promises to the 105 million people of East Europe who are under Soviet-style rule, the chiefs of those countries now seem to feel an urgent need to build up consumer sectors, and there is realistic politics behind it all.

Consequently, they are looking Westward, and it is difficult for Moscow to fret openly about it, because the bloc leaders are only following Kremlin example.

Ironically, the Communist leaders are looking West for help and profit at a time when they are also publicly expressing devout conviction that the Leninist gospel is about to be proved out and that the capitalist system is now dying from what they call "general crisis."

While the advanced West gropes through economic trouble, Communist economies in the Soviet bloc, despite some infection from world dislocations, seem to do well enough to encourage cautious confidence that they can turn serious attention to wriggling out of their old austerity blanket. Ailing or not, the West is a source of help in this.

The Russians would be unlikely to stand for too much independence among their allies. The bloc remembers 1968 when Moscow used armed might to stifle the Czechoslovak reform movement. But the Russians did shy away from direct intervention in the riots that rocked Poland a few years ago and in fact were persuaded by those events that it might be wise themselves to move a bit more quickly on the consumer front.

Like the Russians themselves, the bloc nations want Western know-how, consumer technology and industrial equipment.

If the snowball keeps growing, however, the resultant increase in appetites and opportunities for more autonomy in relations with the Soviet Union can make Moscow itchy.

In "comradely" meetings, the Russians are said to have told their Warsaw Pact allies the Soviet Union can't afford to ignore the world market. Eastern Europe thus feels inflationary heat as prices of Soviet raw materials and fuel, like prices of other products, head upward. Client allies must pay through their noses.

The detente atmosphere can serve as a shield as East Europeans fend for themselves. But as detente developed, Moscow sought not only to tighten controls at home, but to caulk potential slow leaks in the bloc and protect its large measure of control over political and economic philosophies.

Romania, having boldly claimed a big dollop of independence in trade and foreign policy, has felt the hot Soviet breath. Only a few months ago Moscow heavily pressured Romania to permit movement of Soviet troops across her territory, purportedly to assist Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Bulgaria. Romania, which spurned pact exercises, resisted.

Trade With West Is Increasing

In November the Romanian party will hold a congress and adopt a long-range program that writes in the independent stance. It will insist on relations with both capitalist and Communist nations on the basis of "rigorous observance of every state's independence and sovereignty." The document treats the Soviet Union and China as equals and explicitly resists attempts to condemn "other fraternal parties."

Poland, like Romania, enjoys most favored nation status in trade with the United States, something the Russians haven't yet been able to get. United States-Polish trade has almost doubled in two years.

East Germany's Communist leadership exhibits self-assurance these days, now that the economic isolation from the West is ended. It now possesses long-awaited diplomatic recognition from Washington and from 110 other governments, plus virtual recognition from West Germany, so the division can be considered permanent. Detente has eased the crisis atmosphere over Berlin.

Hungary is feeling inflation pains. Fuel, gasoline, natural gas, wholesale industrial prices and costs of basic industrial raw materials have soared. Although the Hungarians seemed ideologically timid about looking West, they have broadcast an intention of broadening economic relations with the European Common Market and the United States.

Czechoslovakia, still cowering from the traumatic experience of 1968, is slowly but gradually emerging from her economic isolation. Trade concessions from the United States are held up by the Senate Finance Committee pending satisfaction of American citizens' claims for property confiscated by the Communist regime after the 1948 takeover.

INVITATION TO BID
Sealed proposals for roof repair on the Power Plant, located on the East Campus at Lincoln, Nebraska, will be received by the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska until 2:00 p.m. on the 17th day of October, 1974, and then will be opened and read publicly. Work shall consist of a new built-up roof and gravel applied over new insulation, membrane flashing, and steel metal as shown on the drawings. Place of opening will be at the Office of the Director of Special Business Services, Room 508, Administration Building, 14th and R Street, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska.
All bids shall be made on printed forms contained in the specifications or a similar copy thereof. The contract documents may be examined at the Office of the Physical Plant Administration at 1700 "Y" Street, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska.
No bidder may withdraw his bid for at least forty-five (45) days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bid.
The University of Nebraska reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

County Expected To OK Personnel Service Pact

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners are expected to approve next week a contract with the city for personnel services bringing the total cost for administering the plan to about $40,000 annually.

At the request of County Engineer Walter Hoppe, who indicated that department heads had not been given the opportunity to review the contract and make comments, the board agreed to delay action on approval of the contract for one week.

The contract calls for the city to provide certain services at a cost of $1,000 per month to the county.

The county has already hired at $19,000 per year a personnel officer, Wayne Hart, who also serves as the board's administrative assistant.

The board has also employed an assistant to Hart, Arlene Booras, who currently makes $7,758, and who will be considered for a probationary increase up to $8,153 beginning Jan. 1.

Commissioners indicated that Mrs. Booras would act as a liaison person between the city and county while Hart would perform the following duties:

- maintain official personnel folders.
- coordinate internal payroll and personnel forms and records requirements.

— develop and maintain communication with department heads and employees.

— act as liaison with advisory groups and personnel police board.

According to terms of the contract, the city will provide the following services: recruitment; acceptance of applications; testing, evaluation and ranking of candidates; maintain a current eligible register of candidates for positions; maintain candidate application files; provide certification of eligible candidates for position vacancies; perform job audits for new classifications; conduct an annual pay survey to reflect current job market figures on benchmark job classes, and advertise and provide forms of applicants for positions.

The contract further states that the city will also perform such other services to further the purposes of the contract which are agreed upon by the city personnel director and the county personnel officer.

County Board Chairman Robert Colin noted that by the county's contracting with the city, Hart would have more time to serve the board as its administrative assistant.

Commissioner Jan Gauger said that this would enable Hart to "cut his work load back to 60 hours a week."

Better Cultural Awareness Programs Ed Board Goal

Citing a need for improved cultural awareness programs in the Lincoln School District, Rudy Perez recommended Tuesday night that the Lincoln Board of Education revise its present goals and objectives by Jan. 1.

The board supported the report by Perez, on behalf of the Superintendent's Advisory Committee on Cultural Awareness, created by board action in March.

To improve further sensitivity of students to all ethnic backgrounds and cultures, the committee also recommended teacher training under a comprehensive plan for cultural awareness.

Diverse Exposure

The district, according to another recommendation, "should emphasize that it is most interested in appointing applicants who have had previous training in cultural awareness" and "exposure to diverse cultural backgrounds."

Perez said the district should also supply and develop instructional materials to enhance all students' cultural awareness, and identify in all school buildings persons to assist in such special programs.

Supt. John Prasch said he supports the recommendations, also endorsed Monday by the Lincoln Education Association board, and they were referred to the Principals' Council.

In an other report to the board, Jerry Sellentin, chairman of the External Advisory Committee for Business Education, made recommendations to improve deficiencies in district instructional programs.

Quality Lower

The committee worked on its report for two years. First-year chairman Glenn Chase, of Woodmen Accident and Life, said, "The quality of students today does not compare with what it was 10 years ago."

Chase cited poor spelling ability of high school graduates, which the committee would correct by expanding business instruction to include English grammar, speech and business math.

Sellentin, Bryan Hospital personnel director, said the committee of business leaders proposes a required business principles course for all senior high students; more cooperative education experiences for business students; stress on self-discipline to prepare for personal and business responsibilities, including expansion to the junior high level.

Teacher Work

The committee also proposed short-term work experiences for business teachers for credit and pay, allowing updating on "new things we have in business, and some of the problems," Sellentin said.

He also urged continued use of business people in classroom activities. He agreed the committee will continue on a review basis and will help the district establish math competencies.

Supt. John Prasch said the district intends to use outside experts in all vocational training areas and is currently revamping the counseling program. "We're not really encouraged at this point that we're making good progress" with the teacher-adviser system, he said.

The board took no action on any of the recommendations.

Prasch reported that fourth-week official attendance figures indicate elementary school registrations are down 573, or 3.7%, compared to last September. Including kindergarten, 14,823 students have enrolled, while 15,331 were predicted.

The junior high attendance prediction of 7,159 was short, with 6,993 enrolled, down 132 or 1.8% compared to 7,125 last year.

High School Higher

High school attendance is up 127 by 78 students, Prasch said. Last September, 6,390 were enrolled compared to 6,468 now.

Prasch said the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission has advised him it believes the district has violated fair employment practices laws in the case of Irving Junior High English teacher Janis Ristow.

The board last spring denied Mrs. Ristow's request to use sick leave while she was on maternity leave. Prasch said the commission "thought she had a case" and will "visit with us about it."

Truck Driver Slightly Hurt After Swerve

Jimmy Firestone, 21, of 5318 Walker, Apt. 1, escaped serious injury Monday when his pickup truck overturned when he swerved to miss a young girl on a bicycle and hit a curb, police said.

Police said Firestone was northbound on 56th St. when the accident occurred near LaSalle St., police said. The truck came to rest on its top. Firestone was treated and released from Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Police have not yet been able to find the bicyclist. Witnesses said the girl left the scene.

Modern Dance Academy

A modern dance academy met weekly and workshops were held for teachers who wanted to use modern or creative dance in their classrooms.

The Joffrey Ballet was seen by more than 6,000 Lincoln students, two-thirds of whom rated Joffrey "an important part" of the Year of the Arts.

In visual arts, artists with talents in ceramics, jewelry, glassblowing, mosaics, illustrating, batik and filmmaking worked in the schools and the city.

Minden Woman Killed In Crash With BN Train

Minden (AP) — Susan C. Goth, 29, of Minden died in a hospital Tuesday about 2 1/2 hours after her car was in collision with a Burlington Northern freight train.

The Kearney County sheriff's office said the victim was alone in a southbound car.

The accident happened at a crossing on the west side of Minden.

The engineer on the train was identified as Thomas Burns of McCook.

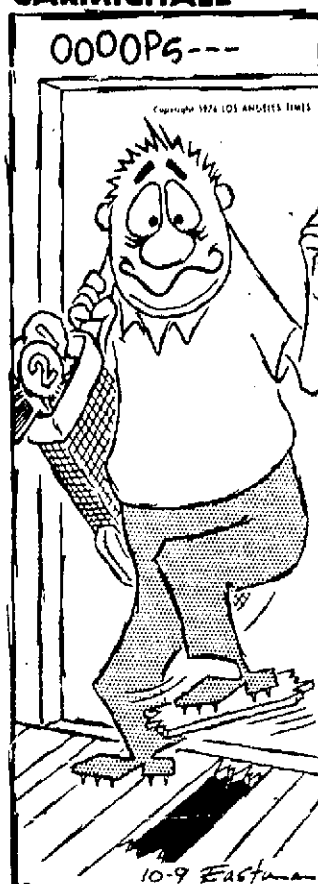

The death raised Nebraska's 1974 traffic fatality toll to 302, compared with 324 at this time last year.

Bar To Honor Old Members

Five Lincoln men are among 20 attorneys who will receive certificates for 50 years of membership in the Nebraska Bar Association at an association annual meeting Thursday in Omaha.

They are Clifford M. Hicks, Walton B. Roberts, Hugo F. Srb, B. Frank Watson and John C. Whitten.

CARMICHAEL

Steer From Nebraska Has Traces Of DES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal inspectors have turned up a beef liver containing illegal residues of DES, a livestock growth chemical known to cause cancer in laboratory animals, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Officials said the sample was from a Nebraska steer slaughtered at a Council Bluffs, Iowa, packing plant. It was obtained Aug. 26 during a routine sampling to detect possible chemical residues.

The department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said the liver contained a DES level of 1.3 parts per billion. No trace of the chemical is permitted in livestock slaughtered for human use.

Officials said the DES contamination was the second found this year among 2,093 animals checked. The earlier one, reported last June, also involved Nebraska beef. About 300 samples are checked each month. Although many DES-contaminated livers have been found over the years, none of the chemical has ever been detected in red meat tissue, officials said.

The chemical was banned as a livestock growth stimulant in 1973 but in January of this year was permitted again by a federal court ruling. It is allowed only if it is withdrawn in time for the chemical to pass out of an animal's body before slaughter.

A spokesman said contamination cases are turned over to the Food and Drug Administration for further investigation and possible legal action against livestock producers.

Dick Baker Now Lincoln's Acting Mayor

If you have any questions or complaints for Lincoln's mayor, you might give Councilman Dick Baker a call — at least through Thursday night. Then you can call Councilman Bob Sikyta.

Baker and Sikyta will put on the acting mayor's hat this week while Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis are out of town.

Boosalis was acting mayor Monday until she left for Chicago, Sikyta, the council's vice chairman, then took over the job. But, he was scheduled to leave the city, returning late Thursday.

Since the City Charter only provides that the council chairman and vice chairman assume the acting mayor's job in the absence of the mayor, Boosalis asked Baker if he would assume the role.

Baker said he did not foresee any problems arising during his brief tour of duty at the city's helm.

Schwartzkopf is attending an airport manager's convention in San Diego.

Match-Chewing Pooch Starts Fire

Dog is considered to be man's best friend but the saying does not hold true when your dog is responsible for burning a four-foot hole in your carpet.

District Fire Chief Mel Keller said a fire at the Mrs. Barbara Everett residence, 6720 Orchard, Tuesday morning was caused by a dog chewing on a box of matches.

Firemen were puzzled for a time about what could have caused the blaze until the family pooch was found with a somewhat singed snout and mouth.

Play Group Combines Fun For Kids; Freedom For Mom

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

Four mornings a week two-year-old Andrew Kalish, gripping a sack of clean diapers in one hand, walks down the street to the neighbor's house for play group.

Every Tuesday morning he stays home and greets his little neighborhood friends, for that's when his mother, Suzanne Kalish, has her turn at supervising play group.

Play Groups, which have been springing up in towns across the nation, are a cross between nursery school and playing at a friend's house. The play groups offer a good socializing experience for youngsters plus hours of freedom for mother each week.

The Lincoln play group, started by Suzanne Kalish in September, has a similar format to groups in other areas.

Five mothers, with eight preschoolers among them, cooperate in the venture. Each day the children spend two hours, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., together, at a different house. Each mother supervises the children one morning during the week.

When the idea of a play group was first suggested to Suzanne Kalish several years ago, she immediately rejected it thinking, "It's not nice to farm out your kids."

After a year with a play group in Boston she was sold on the idea.

And when the Kalishes moved back to Lincoln this summer with their three children, Karen, 6, Daniel, a few months old, and Andrew, just entering the terrible two's, she knew she had to find another play group.

So she started one in her own neighborhood.

"Educated homemakers are beginning to realize that they want more out of their day than just babysitting their toddlers," she explained.

When you have many mothers living in houses side by side, each with one child to entertain every day, it only makes sense to have a play group, she said.

In Boston, play groups are so popular that many have become structured. Some are for boys only, girls only or split half boys and girls; some are very academically oriented.

The Lincoln group is very informal, flexible. The children, ranging in age from 2 to 4 can come late, leave early or not come at all.

Each mother makes her own plans for the day she is responsible for play group. There are no discipline rules, though Ms. Kalish said, "I don't think any of the mothers in this neighborhood would spank the children."

The group had one organizational meeting and set up one rule — sick children stay at home. Ms. Kalish hopes to have other meetings to "iron out any problems that might develop."

During the morning the children may do art activities, finger paint, read books or just play, and there is always a mid morning snack.

Before her first day as play group mother in Boston Ms. Kalish lay awake for hours wondering how she was going to handle a group of one year olds.

BOYD NIELSEN . . . concentrates on his work, while jealous host Andrew lets feelings out.

Now the former pre-school and elementary teacher looks forward to her day. She sets up learning centers in the basement of her home for the children. She also looks forward to her days alone. "At first I had mus-givings about the group, "she said of her experience in Boston. But she found that the play group gave her more freedom and "the time I was with Andrew I enjoyed him more."

The group is a good socializing experience for the children and also lets them get close to other adults. They see adults other than just their mothers as responsible, loving people, she pointed out.

For the children, the only draw back of the group seems to be the day he or she hosts the group. On this day he has to share his toys and mother with many children.

"I suppose it would be the same feeling if my husband brought home a whole group of people who went through my closet and tried on all my clothes," said Ms. Kalish.

Proud Denies Insurance, Anti-ERA Connection

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — State Sen. Richard Proud has reacted angrily to suggestions of a connection between opponents of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and insurance companies.

DeLoris Clouse, president of the Lincoln chapter of the National Organization for Women, said at a NOW convention in Kansas City that an investigation showed the insurance connection.

She said Proud, who headed this campaign which resulted in the Legislature's reversing its endorsement of the amendment, was one of the persons she was referring to.

Proud, an attorney for Mutual of Omaha, said, "If she is saying that my company had anything to do with my fight against the ERA, it's a lie. They had absolutely nothing to do with it."

My company in no way, shape or form took part in my decisions. If she has any proof, let her come forth. She can't because it's not true.

She is a liar, if that is what she is saying. She should put up or shut up.

In her Kansas City statements, Miss Clouse said that the investigation "revealed a pattern whereby outspoken individuals against ERA usually turned up on the payrolls of insurance companies."

"We don't have any proof of financial backing," she said, "but we're implying a question. It's more than just coincidental."

She said insurance companies could be hurt by the ERA because of "differences in premiums for men and women" and because of the many women employed by insurance firms whose pay would have to be equalized.

She said her group is asking for a congressional investigation. She questioned where Proud had received funds for several campaign trips outside Nebraska to speak against the ERA.

Proud said that his trips to five states were paid for by women in those states who opposed the ERA and took up a collection.

Responding to a possible motivation for insurance companies involvement, Proud said, "If anything, premiums now are favorable to women because they have a greater life expectancy."

He said that federal laws now make it mandatory for all firms to give equal pay for equal work.

Opening lead — six of diamonds

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a diamond. You duck the jack and queen, but win the next diamond with the ace.

After cashing the A-K of clubs you play a spade, finessing the nine, which loses to East's king. Then comes the moment of truth when East returns a heart. You must now decide whether to stake the outcome on a heart finesse or a second spade finesse.

Superficially, which finesse to take seems to be an even-money shot, but actually the odds favor going up with the ace of hearts and staking the outcome on another spade finesse. This is a mathematical proposition, pure and simple, but there is no doubt that in the long run the spade finesse will succeed more often than the heart finesse.

It all goes back to the question of how the two missing spade honors could have been dealt originally. There were four ways, each approximately equal in frequency. Thus, West could have been dealt:

1. The king and queen.
2. Neither of them.
3. The king without the queen.
4. The queen without the king.

Note that the cases where the honors are evenly divided outnumber the cases where East has both honors by a margin of two to one. So, if you lose the first spade finesse to East, the odds remain two to one that the second spade finesse will win — as opposed to a 50 per cent chance on the heart finesse.

Some readers may contend that Case 4 is no longer possible once East has produced the king, but, this argument notwithstanding, the fact is that taking the second spade finesse is twice as likely to succeed as the heart finesse.

GI Benefit Extension Has Special Impact On Women

Many women* veterans who did not use their GI Bill after the Korean Conflict now have a second chance at Veterans Administration financial help for a college education or other training, under a new law.

Don V. Campbell, Director of the VA Regional Office, Lincoln, Nebraska, said that when eligibility for this veteran's benefit was recently extended two more years for all veterans discharged after Jan. 31, 1955, it had a special significance for women veterans whose children are reaching ages that allow them more free time.

He said the deadline for completion of training — other than flight training, on-job-training or apprenticeship — is now May 31, 1976, or 10 years from the veteran's date of discharge, whichever is later. The deadline for completion of on-job-training, apprenticeship or flight training is Aug. 31, 1977, or 10 years from discharge date, whichever is later.

Of the some 160,000 women veterans eligible for current GI Bill school benefits nationally, about 54,000 have trained under this program. This spring, nearly 21,000 were in training, mostly in college. Only 209 were on-the-job trainees.

It's Moving Time At The Zoo

It was like Noah's ark revisited.

One by one, two by two and three by three the animals from the Children's Zoo were moved to their winter quarters.

When the leaves begin to fall and the temperature begins to drop, the move is a necessary one for those animals not accustomed to our climate.

And that is especially true for the cold-blooded animals whose body temperatures are determined by the elements.

Tuesday was moving day for Louis and Louisa, the North American alligators.

And they had a little help from their friends. Moving the reptiles is a three-man job.

First, attention must be given to holding their jaws securely shut — alligators have little power to open their mouths but, once open, they can close them in a split second, regardless of what is in the way.

While Louis's jaws were held shut, the other alligator movers lifted his legs off the ground so he couldn't roll to jar his jaws loose. While all four were off the ground, a two-by-12-inch plank was slipped under him. His body was lashed securely to the plank; his head and jaws were taped.

The process repeated for Louisa, the two scaly creatures went for a ride to the Antelope Zoo where they will be on display throughout the winter.

This is the first time ever that the alligators will be on display at Antelope, said Alan Bietz, director of the Children's Zoo. In the past they whiled the winter away in seclusion nearer their home.

Other Children's Zoo birds and animals who can be seen this fall and winter at near-by Antelope Zoo are the crown cranes, flamingoes — one actually belongs to the city, but is displayed cooperatively by the two zoos — roseate spoonbills, scarlet ibis, thick-tailed galagos — early primates resembling monkeys — macaws and wood storks.

Gomer, the reticulated python is due to arrive at Antelope Zoo within the next few weeks. At 14 feet, he will be the largest snake on display there.

LOUIS ... is taped down for his trip.

Pioneer Park will be the winter home for the Sicilian donkeys, shetland ponies and Scottish four-horned sheep.

Winterizing at the Lincoln Children's Zoo will be finalized when the primates — monkeys and gibbons — are moved to inside quarters. This definitely the most dangerous moving job of all, Bietz said.

Reporting Bully To Authorities Is Not Chicken

DEAR ABBY: If someone tries to pick a fight with you at school and you have done everything you can to avoid a fight, but that person starts pushing you around, and you have to use force to defend yourself, do you think it's fair that the person who was trying to defend himself should get punished just the same as the troublemaker?

What is a person supposed to do when he is picked on by someone who is trying to get him into a fight? I am not going to just stand there and let him push me around. Fighting is against the rules on our school grounds.

UNFAIRLY PUNISHED
DEAR UN: When someone tries to provoke a fight by pushing you around, instead of pushing HIM around, report him to the authorities.

This may sound like the chicken's way out, but it's the only way to protect yourself from the punishment of breaking the "no fighting" rules at your school. (P.S. You might consider taking some lessons in self defense, and give that bully a surprise lesson in case he ever tries to push you around OFF the school grounds.)

DEAR ABBY: I read about that mother who never wanted children but she accidentally had two anyway. She said not all women were cut out to be mothers, and she was one of them.

She may be interested in my story: My husband and I always wanted a large family. Ten months after we were married I gave birth to a healthy baby boy. We couldn't wait to have more.

Twelve miscarriages later, I had another son. He was born dead.

A year later, I gave birth to another son.

Eighteen months later, a third son was born, but we soon discovered that our second and third sons were both severely deaf.

They needed special education. After thousands of dollars worth of tutoring and much hard work, our two deaf sons are now able to talk nearly as well as our normal son.

I wanted children desperately, and their being handicapped doesn't make us love them any less. Some handicaps can be overcome.

I hope that mother realizes that in her refusal to love her children she is handicapped. And I hope she overcomes her handicap before it handicaps her unloved children.

LUCKY IN ILLINOIS

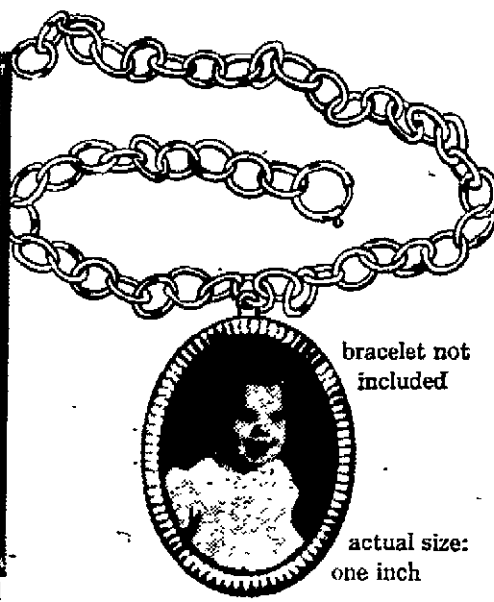

DEAR LUCKY. Your children are lucky, too. God bless you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

A Roundup of Sports News

Football

Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant said that quarterback Richard Todd would not play in the Crimson Tide's game against Florida State.

Running back Ken Willard, suffering from a knee injury, is a probably starter for the NFL game against the Dallas Cowboys, the St. Louis Cardinals announced.

A federal magistrate says he will seek an indictment or arrest warrant against former St. Louis Cardinal running back Leo Hayden for again failing to appear in court on a charge of illegal flight to avoid prosecution on a bad check charge.

An autopsy report released by Colorado General Hospital said no cause had been determined in the death of a 17-year-old Longmont, Colo., High School player, Scott Wilson, with the cause listed as an expansion of fluids in the brain.

UCLA coach Dick Vermeil said that linebacker Frank Manumaleuna, who won a starting job as a freshman, would be out for the rest of the season because of a pinched neck nerve suffered in the Iowa game.

The Cleveland Browns signed former Cincinnati Bengals' receiver Tim George with Ben Hawkins, obtained this season in a trade from Philadelphia, placed on waivers.

The Northwestern, Iowa, College team has accepted an invitation to play against the Japanese All-Stars Dec. 29 and Jan. 2 in Tokyo.

Washington Redskins' coach George Allen confirmed after practice that Sonny Jurgensen will start at quarterback against the Miami Dolphins.

Baseball

Bill Virdon, who coached the New York Yankees to second place in the American League's East Division, was named Major League Manager of the year by The Sporting News with the Texas Rangers' Billy Martin second in the voting.

An Oklahoma City oil man has purchased the Alexandria Aces of the Texas League for a reported $50,000.

Hockey

The Winnipeg Jets of the WHL announced the seven-day suspension of center Chris Bordeleau over a contract dispute.

The Philadelphia Flyers of the NHL announced they had shifted three players from their Richmond Robins American Hockey League farm team to the Philadelphia Firebirds of the North American Hockey League including the brother of Flyer star Dave Schultz.

Other Sports

The Utah Stars of the ABA signed veteran guard Walt Jones, hoping he'll fill the playmaker role of holdout Jimmy Jones, while all-star forward Willie Wise came to terms this week.

Eugene, Ore., has an excellent chance of being host city again for the U.S. Olympic track and field trials. Bill Bowerman announced.

Stockholders of historic Hialeah Race Track, troubled by a $3 million operating loss last spring, voted to sell their racing dates to Jimmy Donn's Gulfstream Park for $7 million.

Boston center Dave Cowens sustained an injury to his right foot during the Celtics' 106-96 exhibition loss to the Milwaukee Bucks and will undergo X-rays to determine the extent of the injury.

The Milwaukee Bucks acquired 6-8 forward Steve Kuberski from the New Orleans Jazz for Russell Lee, their first round college pick next year and an undisclosed sum of cash.

Quartet Ties In Pro-Am

Four area golf professionals tied for low pro honors in the Nebraska Professional Golfers Association fall meeting Pro-Am held at Lincoln Country Club Monday.

Juan Elizondo of Highland Country Club in Omaha, Wes Malmack from Omaha's Oak Hills, Council Bluffs, Ia., Lakeshore pro J. D. Turner and Lochland CC pro Bud Williamson Jr. all fired even par 72 to tie in the Nebraska section PGA event.

Low team honors went to Steve Shanahan and his amateur partners Dennis Thompsett, Whitey Buel and Jack McKinnon from Oak Hills, with a best ball score of 58.

Tied for second were teams of Albion's Bill Scarborough and Dave Maustad of Lincoln Country Club, one stroke back at 59.

One of the highlights of the 18-hole tourney was a hole-in-one by Lincoln's Bill Clore.

Clore, playing with Holmes Park pro Bob Schuchart, Jim Lowe and Gary Shields used a nine-iron on the 141-yard fifth hole. Clore shot a scratch 79 with the ace.

Re-appraising The Big Eight

Except for Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, the Big Eight Conference football season begins Saturday after four weeks of skirmishing against teams from other sectors of the nation

So, it's time to take a close look at what has happened and what is about to happen. Only the Sooners have a game remaining outside the league, Saturday in the Cotton Bowl against Texas. That should be a victory to bring the non-conference record to a very respectable 21-11.

The Big Eight was a victim of "Black Saturday, 1974" on Sept. 21 when conference teams lost four of seven games, including Nebraska to Wisconsin 21-20.

Some of the pain of that defeat was erased when Wisconsin rolled over Missouri last Saturday with ridiculous ease 59-20. That restored the Huskers' image in the conference and helped them nationally as far as polls and bowls are concerned.

The national championship still is a possibility, but they'll have to win the rest of their games and get some outside help, which is not out of the question.

Winning the last seven Big Eight games would automatically eliminate Oklahoma. It won't be easy, by any means, but the schedule is more favorable than it was a year ago.

Three Others Contenders

Other contenders for the No. 1 rating right now are Alabama, Michigan and Ohio State — not necessarily in that order.

Alabama doesn't play undefeated Florida, so the best hope for "help" for the Huskers appears to be Auburn, which plays the Crimson Tide Nov. 29 in Birmingham.

In between, Coach Bear Bryant's team faces Tennessee, Mississippi State, LSU and Miami of Florida. Those are some big names in college football, but none are having particularly great years.

Either Michigan or Ohio State will be eliminated from the picture when they face each other in Columbus, O., Nov. 23 (the same day the Sooners and Huskers clash).

Before then, though, Wisconsin could have some say in who's No. 1. The Badgers are at Ohio State Saturday and will be host to Michigan Oct. 19. Ideally, Wisconsin needs to beat one or the other and then the one the Badgers beat needs to beat the other.

My vote went to the Huskers after the Skywriters tour and I still feel that way. The team is getting better by the week.

After non-league play, the Sooners and Kansas look like they'll be tough customers. I'd rate Colorado and Oklahoma State in the next group with Missouri, Kansas State and Iowa State all capable of pulling the big surprise.

Huskers And The Big Play

The ability to make the "big play" is the mark of a good team and Nebraska certainly has been able to come up with the long gainers in the first four games.

No fewer than 13 Husker backs have made runs of 10 yards or more and the total is a staggering 46 times. Passes longer than 10 yards total 19.

Likewise, the sign of a good defensive team is not permitting long runs. Nebraska excels here, too. Opponents have had just eight runs of 10 or more yards and 15 passes in the same category.

Of this total eight opponents' big plays have come in the fourth quarter. Unfortunately, one of them — the 77-yard pass by Wisconsin — was in the final quarter and it is what's keeping NU from an undefeated season.

The leader in big plays rushing is Tony Davis, who has seven runs 10 yards and over with a long-gainer of 20 yards. Freshman Monte Anthony, sophomore Gary Higgs and senior John O'Leary each have six.

Other big play makers include Don Westbrook with five, Earl Everett and Jeff Moran with four apiece, and one each by Tom Hieser, Ritch Bahe, Dave Humm, Dale Zabrocki and Darrell Walton.

Abdul-Jabbar-Walton Matchup Draws Interest

Milwaukee, Wis. (UPI) — The comparisons between Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bill Walton are inevitable.

The first meeting is now history, with Abdul-Jabbar emerging the clear cut victor, to nobody's surprise.

And, while both players minimize the comparisons between each other, there is justifiable interest by basketball fans — who pay the freight — to cause an overwhelming amount of news coverage.

The two players met for the first time Oct. 3 in an exhibition game in Dayton, Ohio. The outpouring of media representatives was almost equal to that of the final series between the Milwaukee Bucks and Boston Celtics in the National Basketball Association playoffs last season.

During the warmups, Abdul-Jabbar went through his paces lackadaisically, making layups and short hooks.

At the other end of the floor, Walton gazed surreptitiously several times at Abdul-Jabbar. He didn't stare with open-mouthed curiosity, but with something that resembled abiding interest.

In the stands that night was Sam Gilbert, the wealthy Los Angeles businessman who has acted as a surrogate attorney agent-adviser for so many UCLA athletes, including Abdul-Jabbar and Walton.

The difference between the two players on the court was evident to all. Abdul-Jabbar's experience showed and Walton's rookie greenness was obvious.

The difference in the off-court behavior of the two was even more striking.

For years Abdul-Jabbar has had the reputation of being difficult to get along with members of the press. But as soon as the Bucks arrived in Dayton, he held a news conference where he answered every question during a half-hour session.

And after the game he knew newsmen had a job to do, and he obliged. He didn't even take off his shoes before he headed for a corner and held court. He didn't rush, and he tried to give answers that satisfied everyone.

Over in the Portland dressing room it was another story. Walton headed for the shower as soon as the game ended. Three quarters of an hour later he was still there, as an increasingly testy throng of reporters waited.

He partially emerged, finally, and saw the newsmen. But he stood in a small alcove off the main dressing quarters, toweling off, and talking with Gilbert for about 10 minutes.

Only after that did he come out, and he was reticent with the media. He tried, with a kind of open-mouthed eagerness to answer questions, but he plainly wanted the interviews to end so he could get away.

Relations with reporters are difficult things for many athletes. The fans pay those high salaries and they want to read about the players.

It took Abdul-Jabbar a while to learn that and it probably also will take Walton a while.

Opperman Eyes Western Title

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — A field of 130 cars will begin qualifying Wednesday for the $30,000 seventh annual Western U.S. Sprint Car Championships.

A total of 26 cars will make their way to Saturday night's 50-lap finale on the half-mile clay oval at Manzanita Speedway.

Leading the pack will be Jan Opperman, of Beaver Crossing, winner of the event in 1971 and 1972. He is expected to be closely followed by Billy Shuman, Tempe, Ariz., who will have the home track advantage.

Seitchick Personally Against Gal Boxers

Omaha (UPI) — Nebraska Boxing Commissioner Cy Seitchick of Omaha said Tuesday he would find it "personally distasteful" if women were permitted to become professional boxers in the state, but he would do what he could to process the applications.

Seitchick noted that two women have applied for boxing licenses in New York State.

They said they would only fight other women if their applications for licenses were approved at a meeting of the New York State Boxing Commission, Nov. 7.

"Although it would be personally distasteful to me if a woman would apply for a license in Nebraska, I would see what I could do about processing the application," Seitchick said.

"But I would also tell them there is some question about women being allowed to box in Nebraska."

He said he would have to check with the attorney general, the governor and the state board of health. The State Boxing Commission would make the final decision on whether to grant a license.

"I see some very real problems involved if women are permitted to fight professionally," Seitchick said. "All kinds of changes would be necessary, such as separate locker room facilities and female doctors. It would be a real problem."

But if Seitchick shows some reservations concerning professional women fighters, his wife doesn't share that opinion. "I say it's entirely up to the individual woman and if she wants to fight she should be able to fight," Mrs. Seitchick said, adding, "That's definitely my own opinion and not necessarily that of my husband."

More Muscle Predicted In NHL This Season

By United Press International

It was only an exhibition game, but the Montreal and Boston players were going at it as if Canada had declared war on the United States.

An unheard-of total of 200 penalty minutes was assessed in this meaningless contest, and when it was over, someone remarked in the Boston press box about the angry, young Montreal fighters: "The Canadiens haven't had anyone like this since (John) Ferguson."

To which, a Gallic voice replied: "Now we have three."

Henri Richard, the proud Canadian captain who had sat out the game and overheard the remark, was referring to a pair of rookies, defenseman Rick Chartraw and forward Doug Risebrough, and third-year defenseman Larry Robinson.

One week later, the new image Canadiens got involved in another bench-clearing Donnybrook with the New York Rangers in another meaningless exhibition.

As the National Hockey League begins its 58th campaign with seven games Wednesday night, many observers feel that the season may very well be sub-titled "Blood on Ice."

Responsible for this new attitude is the success enjoyed last season by the Philadelphia Flyers, who set all kinds of records for mayhem and fought their way to the Stanley Cup championship. It was somewhat of the same formula employed with great success by the Bruins just a few years earlier, and the idea that a winning team must build on muscle has begun to set in.

That times have changed, Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman made it plain and clear before the exhibition season started.

Football Investors To Meet

Omaha (AP) — Investors, both Nebraskans and out-of-staters, interested in the possibility of an Omaha franchise in the World Football League WFL are slated to meet here Thursday.

WFL officials have warned that if investors are not found almost immediately, their Detroit and Jacksonville franchises will fold.

Omaha City Councilman Steve Rosenblatt said he has had no indication that this urgent situation has enhanced Omaha in the eyes of league.

Rosenblatt said Gary Davidson of California, the founder of the new league, and another league official in Alabama are looking for several million dollars in backing for a team, but the councilman added that the league would get rid of some of its "weak sisters" and shore up the league overall.

Rosenblatt said he thinks the tight money situation across the country may be responsible for the difficulties in finding the financial backing for the Jacksonville and Detroit teams.

"This year in exhibition games we aren't going to be impressed with guys just scoring goals," he said. "If they want to be impressive they'll have to play aggressively and play good defensive hockey."

"Not one player has his job locked up this year. We're watching everyone more closely and we have this fitness plan that we're introducing. The players will have to stay in shape and work out regularly, not only on the ice but in the gymnasium."

"There's no room for pantywaists on this team," rookie Bruin Coach Don Cherry said following the Donnybrook against Montreal. "If the bleeding hearts don't like it, it's too damn bad."

Cherry then added that while he doesn't expect his players to go around starting fights, he doesn't want to see them backing off.

NHL President Clarence Campbell, though, notes that the referees will have more power this season to head off full-scale fighting on the ice. For one, the referee can assess a stiffer penalty to the player starting a fight, and he can hand out a bench penalty if a player is slow in reporting to the penalty box.

"If there is a tendency for more fighting, it will soon get knocked down," Campbell said Tuesday in his Montreal office. "The NHL will not tolerate this kind of nonsense. This physical play started about two years ago and we did not have the tools to properly check it."

"Now our referees have instant discipline in the bench minor, which will force a team to play a man short if in the opinion of the official the man being penalized in a fight does not go immediately to the penalty box. This will stop all the taunting and roaming about by players causing more trouble."

The two new teams in the NHL make their debut Wednesday.

day night. The Washington Capitals will be in New York to engage the Rangers and the Kansas City Scouts are at Toronto. Other games have the New York Islanders at Montreal, Atlanta at Vancouver, Pittsburgh at Minnesota, Chicago at Detroit and St. Louis at California.

Philadelphia and Boston, who met in the Stanley Cup final last spring, both open Thursday night. The Flyers will be at home to Los Angeles and Boston will be at Buffalo.

With 18 teams, the NHL is divided into four divisions this season, two consisting of four teams and two of five. Following an 80-game schedule that concludes April 6, the top three teams in each division will qualify for the playoffs.

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Those magazines and broadcasting corporations that make a practice of saluting "the sportsman of the year" award will have to make it plural this year. Plural by the millions. Every trophy for 1974 should go to the people of India, a nation.

India has said that it will not play tennis against South Africa in the finals of the Davis Cup tournament.

Tremendous pressure has been put on the government of India, and surely is being exerted at this very moment, to persuade the leaders to change their decision. I don't think the Indians will buckle.

R. K. Khanna, secretary of the all-Indian Lawn Tennis Federation, sounded very final when he said, "I have already stated our position that we will not play South Africa either in South Africa or India or on any neutral ground in the world."

The Indians are telling the world that there are principles more important than the outcome of games, than the winning of a cup.

The Indians are telling you and me that there are some people you just don't play games with because there are some things that just can't be forgiven.

India is saying that it will not give even tennis service to the policy of apartheid, a gimmick whereby the white minority in South Africa maintains restrictive, repressive control over the black majority.

India's action is so much more significant than the recent hiring of Frank Robinson to be a major league baseball manager that there is no comparison.

Robinson's signing was a "great day for his people." India's ultimatum was a "great day for all people, for the world."

Those who look for the easy way out of every situation, even a meaningful one, are presenting the silly argument that "India shouldn't do this to Bob Hewitt, Frew McMillan and Ray Moore."

"The South African players shouldn't be held responsible for a policy of their government." Shouldn't they, though? Hewitt, McMillan and Moore probably are splendid fellows all but they too, live in the world.

If they want to represent South Africa in international play, that's all right with me, but if India doesn't want to play against Bob, Frew and Ray that's much more all right.

Walter Elcock, a U.S. citizen who is president of the International Lawn Tennis Association has been tsk! tsk!-ing that India faced possible censure.

You can almost see the handwriting of Elcock's words as he says, "something like this has never happened in the Davis Cup. I'm very discouraged."

Surely Elcock, who was president of the USLTA until recently, took a good look at India's tennis stars, the brothers Amritraj, during the U.S. Open at Forest Hills.

If he did look, Elcock will remember that Vijay Amritraj and his siblings are very dark skinned men. In some sections of New York or Chicago, the Amritraj family wouldn't be welcome until somebody pointed out, "Oh, they're not what you think. They're Indian. You know. Famous tennis players. Father has loads of money."

Some of the Fathers and Mothers of Tennis never have understood what democracy is all about and their kind probably can't see the hypocrisy of dark-skinned players competing against the supreme white team of a nation that subjugates its dark-skinned people.

Admiring as I am of the Indian stand, I am hopeful that it will be the first of many ethical demonstrations by men and women in sports.

Perhaps a day will come when another nation will say, "we refuse to play cricket against the team of a country which has a powerfully wealthy elite and maintains a caste system while children die of starvation in the streets of Calcutta."

And perhaps in a not too distant time teams will cancel matches in protest of things like the oppression of Soviet Jews and conditions in the ghettos of the United States.

While we're waiting, all hail the Indians, sportsmen of the year.

UNL Pay Hike Will Be Urged

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James H. Zumberge said Tuesday he will recommend "a basic salary adjustment" for faculty members to make UNL competitive among comparable institutions.

Zumberge told the UNL Faculty Senate he will "take a major step" to propose that NU President D.B. Varner and the Board of Regents approve a revised salary policy.

Previous salary packages, approved by the Legislature, were designed to meet inflationary factors and award raises based on merit, Zumberge said.

Evidence 'Clear'

"The evidence is abundantly clear we have to add a third component," he said, beginning with adjusted base salaries, then "inflation built in on top of the new salary base," and finally awarding merit pay increases.

Following Zumberge's presentation, the Faculty Senate unanimously approved two resolutions, one of which asks the UNL administration and NU Regents to request 1975-76 funds that will bring UNL salaries to the mid-point in standing with comparable schools.

Zumberge said he doesn't know what the dollar requirement would be to eliminate salary disparities. A Faculty Senate salary committee last month estimated it would require a 19% overall increase in salary funds.

The senate also resolved to appoint a committee to work and negotiate with UNL administrators to form an overall salary policy, for which Faculty Senate approval would be required. Senate actions, however, are not binding on

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

It is not absolutely necessary for executives to have heart disease, ulcers and stroke, reports the Nebraska Medical Association. Though they can affect anyone, these ailments that are commonly associated with businessmen who reach the management level.

Regardless of your level of employment these tips will help you preserve your health.

Watch your weight. Strenuous diets usually are not necessary. Just eat less.

Exercise. Golf is fine, if you enjoy it. But if you are one of the many who lose their tempers and get upset over every missed stroke, brisk walks will serve just as well, perhaps better.

Take vacations. Real vacations, not just an occasional day or two. Play your vacation so there will be time to relax and unwind.

Smoke less. Better still, quit smoking altogether, if you can. There is no doubt whatsoever that smoking is not good for you.

Cut down on drinking. Two cocktails before dinner may be one too many. One might be too many for some people.

Get plenty of sleep. Try to sleep without the use of drugs, if at all possible.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges you to try to put business worries out of your mind when you leave the office.

'Major Crimes Unit' Seeks Missing Coed

The Lincoln police "major crimes unit" Tuesday entered the investigation into the disappearance of a University of Nebraska-Lincoln coed.

Debra Forycki, 21, has been listed as a missing person since Thursday, when she vanished from her apartment at 1106 S. 20th.

Although police have no reason to suspect foul play, according to Inspector Robert Butcher, they have found "no trace" of the woman.

According to her friends, the woman's disappearance is out of character, Butcher said. Her roommate, Karen Pitzel, called police when Forycki did not return to the apartment, Butcher said.

The day before her disappearance, Butcher said, the girl went out with friends after she got off work at Brandeis.

Later she sat around in her apartment and ate popcorn with neighbors. She seemed to be "in a real good frame of mind," Butcher said.

Pitzel left the apartment at 7.45 a.m. the next morning, assuming that Karen was still sleeping. When she returned later she found the apartment had been tidied.

There is no sign that the woman packed anything at all in preparation for a trip, Butcher said. Forycki did not own a car.

The woman is a senior at UNL, majoring in French. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Forycki, live in Omaha.

The woman is described as having blonde hair and green eyes, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighing 135 pounds.

But Forycki did not keep a luncheon date that day and did not report for work at Brandeis at 2:20 p.m.
